$4,000 Fire Destroys Garage, Car

An acetylene torch being used to carve the body of a used car spread sparks resulting in $4,000 fire that completely gutted Clarke's Auto Parts and Service, 3233 Douglas, at 9:31 a.m. today.

Saanich deputy fire chief Glen Robbins said flames from the torch apparently exploded a can of gasoline starting a fire that spread through the shop within seconds.

No one was injured. Co-owners Alfred Bianco and Raymond Diggs were present when the fire began and attempted to douse it, but inside of two seconds the whole building was going, Deputy Robbins said.

"Flames were leaping out the windows and up the side of the walls."

LONDON (AP)—Little-known Northampton Town today humbled mighty Arsenal 3-1 and knocked the famous London team out of the Football Association Cup competition in one of the biggest-ever soccer upsets on a day of thrills and giant-killing.

Northampton trained for the big match on sherry, eggs and steak. Immediately after their victory they celebrated the club's proudest day with champagne.

"It was a wonderful, wonderful day," commented Northampton manager Dave Smith, whose team is struggling near the foot of the Third Division on a shoe-string balance sheet.

Wealthy Arsenal has won the cup three times. Northampton never has been anywhere near success.

West Ham United and Stockport County joined Northampton as the day's giant-killers. West Ham, a Second Division team, routed First Division Blackpool 5-1. Third Division Stockport defeated Luton 3-0.

The only two non-league survivors were knocked out. Sheffield Wednesday won 3-0 at Hereford and Fulham routed Yeovil Town 4-0.

Wolverhampton Wanderers, setting the pace in this season's league championship race, nosed out Lincoln City 1-0.

Hillary Returning to Base, 'Had Enough of Crevasses'

HILLARY COUP 'CLASSIFIED'

LONDON (UP)—The Times of London, which carries classified ads but never a news story on page one, got so excited today about Sir Edmund Hillary's feat in reaching the South Pole overland that it nearly broke tradition.

In the top right-hand corner of page one The Times proclaimed in a two-line, one-column announcement: "Hillary at the South Pole."

The last time The Times bent tradition that way was when Hillary reached the top of Mt. Everest.

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters)—Sir Edmund Hillary, claiming he has "had enough of ice and crevasses," decided today to leave the South Pole without waiting for a British expedition which is attempting the first crossing of the frozen Antarctic continent.

The 38-year-old New Zealand beekeeper-explorer apparently reached his surprise decision after learning that the British group, led by Dr. Vivian Fuchs, was still 360 miles away from the "bottom of the world" and had again run into trouble.

Hillary, who Friday became the first man to reach the pole by an overland route in 46 years, radioed to the New Zealand base on McMurdo Sound that he and the four other members of his party will fly back "by the first available American aircraft." The next plane is due to leave for McMurdo Sound Monday.

Earlier reports had placed Fuchs within 200 miles of the pole, and the headquarters of the British expedition in London had expected him to link up with Hillary Sunday.

Hillary expressed fear today that Fuchs' expedition will "run into bad weather if it does not complete the run to Scott Base before February."

The New Zealand Antarctic expedition headquarters here emphasized that Hillary's polar dash was not for honors or a race but to ease the route-finding burden on Fuchs.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

God of all nations, we pray for conditions for lasting peace and good will to be experienced by leaders and peoples of all nations. Where hatred is, teach us to love. Where isolationism holds forth, teach us co-operation. Help each of us to know that he is his brother's keeper and answerable to Thee for his brother's well being; for Christ's sake. Amen.

High level talk ain't much good if y're on'y referrin' t' decibels.

If it gits any more crowded there won't be enuff o' thet south pole t' go round.

CANADIAN TROOPS ON ALERT

OTTAWA (CP)—The 2nd battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment based at London, Ont., has been "earmarked" for stand-by duty in case it is needed in an emergency anywhere in the world, Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes said today.

Bronze Medals To Be Awarded Good Citizens

Bronze medals are to be awarded to 50 citizens considered to have made "outstanding contributions" to life in Greater Victoria during the past 100 years, Capt. D. J. Proudfoot, executive secretary of Greater Victoria Centennial Committee, announced today.

It is expected that the medals will be presented by Princess Margaret during her centennial visit here July 12.

The Princess, in turn, will receive a gold souvenir medal from the Victoria Numismatic Society.

Both the gold and the bronze medals will be engraved with the B.C. centennial crest on one side and a likeness of Sir James Douglas on the reverse. "The 50 outstanding citizens will be chosen by five unknown judges," Captain Proudfoot said, "and the judges have still to be selected."

Representations have been made to Buckingham Palace through the B.C. government asking Princess Margaret to make the presentations.

"We have every hope that she will graciously consent to perform this office," Capt. Proudfoot said.

Atomic Sub Tests Hinted By Russians

MOSCOW (AP)—The newspaper Soviet Fleet indicates the Russians may be testing atomic submarines.

In a review of a booklet on submarines the navy newspaper discusses the advantages and disadvantages of atomic submarines "as discovered by testing."

The Swedish naval year book, just issued, says the Soviet Union probably already has three atomic subs.

The United States has four atomic submarines in service and a fifth is expected to join the fleet this year.

NATO Commitment

OTTAWA (CP)—No substantial change in Canada's military contribution to NATO is expected in the near future, Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes said today.

Cannot Hurt, May Help Says British PM

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan suggested tonight that Russia and the Western powers sign a non-aggression pact.

"This has been done before," Macmillan said in a television report to the people. "It would do no harm. It might do good."

He then suggested that ultimately the heads of the great powers might meet to resolve East-West differences.

Russia has suggested several times in recent correspondence with Western government leaders that a non-aggression pact, in one form or another, would contribute to world peace. It also is campaigning now for a summit meeting.

Macmillan said Britain will leave no stone unturned in attempting to secure an agreement through which the Soviet Union and the Western world may live in peace.

Noting that the NATO government heads in Paris last month agreed on new efforts to break the East-West arms deadlock, Macmillan said:

"I don't mind whether we make it through the United Nations or at some smaller meeting. Whether it is done this

SMITH HOPEFUL

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—External Affairs Minister Smith says there is hope that an East-West foreign ministers' conference can be held.

In an interview while on an airplane stopover, he said Canada would serve a useful role as mediator between East and West.

"We could mediate between the West and the Soviet bloc. We have prestige all out of proportion to our population and economic wealth."

way or through diplomatic channels or a combination of both, the object would be to clear away the rubble of old controversies and disagreements—perhaps to get the path ready for a meeting of heads of government.

This statement appeared clearly to leave the way open for an eventual summit meeting of Communist and Western states in contrast to steadfast American opposition to such a meeting until there is a basic change in the Soviet attitude.

Macmillan said that above all the West must maintain its strength while testing the sincerity of Communist intentions.

"It is no good taking away one fear and creating another. We have such an even balance of power as makes war almost impossible. Do not let us lose this advantage."

In reference to the New Year's greetings of Soviet leaders to chiefs of Western governments, Macmillan said: "Over Russian policy hangs a question mark. They often speak fair words. They spoke many fair and friendly words to us on New Year's Day."

"Are these professions of respect and friendship really genuine? Or are they saying a number of things they think we would like to hear in order to weaken our resolve? We cannot yet be sure of the truth."

High officials in Washington said they had no advance knowledge that Macmillan would put forward his suggestion.

Nor, they said, was there any proposal, under study here to change U.S. policy in that respect.

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials showed no enthusiasm today over a suggestion by Prime Minister Macmillan that a non-aggression pact between Russia and Western nations "might do good."

Nor, they said, was there any proposal, under study here to change U.S. policy in that respect.

Macmillan Pact Bid Welcomed by Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—A proposal by British Prime Minister Macmillan in London today that Russia and the Western powers sign a non-aggression pact was welcomed here as opening new possibilities for negotiation.

"Prime Minister Macmillan's statement," said acting external affairs minister Davie Fulton, "opens up interesting and refreshing possibilities for negotiations which it is Canada's desire to see brought about."

Mr. Fulton commented to a reporter that Prime Minister Diefenbaker, on his return from last month's NATO summit meeting in Paris, made clear "Canada would welcome the resumption of negotiations, especially on disarmament."

TAYLOR-MADE FOR RECRUITS

Sexy Army Uniform Call to Arms?

LONDON (UP)—The War Office turned down sex today—at least in uniforms.

Officials turned a deaf ear to a suggestion from an acknowledged sartorial expert that the new British army dress outfit should be "sexy" to attract more volunteers into Her Majesty's forces.

The War Office is presently considering a uniform change. An announcement was expected in the next few days. John Taylor, editor of the authoritative Tailor and Cutter here had some advice in the current issue of the army publication Soldier, on what the announcement should be.

To attract recruits, give them a uniform to attract gals "as they did in the old days," Taylor wrote.

He suggested this colorful ensemble for today's Tommy: A scarlet jacket with shiny black belt, black trousers with scarlet stripe down the side, black shoes, white shirt, a narrow black tie and a black officer's cap with a scarlet band. And instead of an overcoat, Taylor suggested a dashing cape.

Taylor said today's khaki-clad British troops looked like "lumps on legs" in uniforms he described variously as "horrible," "hideous" and "in the worst conceivable taste."

The clothing magazine editor recommended that the beret, worn by the majority of British soldiers, should be "burned."

HAPPY AS THIS FAMILY LOOKS, they know what it is to have their home and plans for the future shattered by the impact of polio. Mrs. Iris Munro, 624 Lampson, seen here with her husband, Jim, and boys, Kenny and Jimmy, has been in a wheelchair for over three years as a result of the paralytic effects of the disease. Four-year-old Kenny (left) was born in an iron lung two months after his mother was stricken.

THIRD SHOT NEXT WEEK

Polio Victims Wish They Had Salk Vaccine

By MICHAEL ROSE

During next week, Monday through Friday, polio vaccine will be available to over 15,000 adults in Greater Victoria at Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals.

These are people who received their first two shots in May and June last year and are now ready for the vital third dose.

This is not a haphazard handing out of three doses of medicine, but a carefully planned program designed to offer maximum protection against three strains of virus.

"Good evidence is available," said a medical spokesman, "to show that adequate protection is not obtained from the first two injections and a third is necessary to ensure protection."

"Further," he said, "there are no distressing side effects and no danger to those receiving injections if they have a cold or have just recovered from influenza."

These 15,000 people have an unprecedented opportunity to provide themselves for the first time in history with almost total protection against one of the most universally crippling diseases.

Housekeeper No Substitute for Mother

During the past two years, Mr. Brown has had the problem of caring for the three children in addition to holding down his job.

Great difficulty is experienced by many people in this situation in finding suitable housekeepers. The Brown family has had five and Mr. Brown says, "they are very good with the children but no housekeeper can ever entirely take the place of a mother."

Mrs. Iris Munro, 624 Lampson Street, was a registered nurse before she married and familiar with the disease but in October, 1953, she was stricken and a little over two months later her second boy, Kenny, was born in an iron lung.

Mrs. Munro is still confined to a wheelchair and dependent on a housekeeper for heavy work but keeps occupied at night by acting as a private nurses' telephone directory.

"When a family is hit with polio," she said, "there is no warning, we can tell you that. One day we were an average normal couple with one little one and another on the way, working slowly toward, someday, having a house and business of our own. The next day our dream had burst and we had a fight for my life and that of our unborn child."

Some, like Ken Bishop, 1047 Wollaston, have been luckier and made recoveries that enable them to carry out a normal day's work.

Not totally affected at the outset of the disease Mr. Bishop describes himself as being "very fortunate."

He was stricken in November, 1955, and after spending more than a year in hospital and the Western Rehabilitation Centre in Vancouver, returned to his job, working two or three hours a week until July, 1957, he was able to work full time.

These and other people who have been polio victims do not want sympathy or pity for they are trying to live lives where they will be the most use to their families and the community.

Each one of them will feel himself more than amply rewarded if every one of the 15,139 people eligible for shots this next week gets them.

The vaccine is Canadian-bred and refined in the Connaught laboratories of the University of Toronto. It is supplied to the medical association for the purposes of this drive by the manufacturers at cost price.

Look at the card you were given last May, showing the day, time and hospital you should go to.

If you feel any doubts about attending, think of the consequences if one of your family was paralyzed in an iron lung.

U.S. BASE TOASTS EXPEDITION

Hot Dogs Spark Warm Reception for Hillary

SOUTH POLE (AP)—Sir Edmund Hillary and his band of New Zealanders feasted on beans and hot dogs today after completing their trek to the South Pole over nearly 1,300 miles of snow and ice.

Meanwhile, London papers hit out at the publicity given Hillary's feat of being a "contest winner."

The 38-year-old conqueror of Mount Everest pulled into the American scientific station here today after camping in sight of it Friday night with tractor gasoline left for only 20 more miles.

The five-man band was the first to make it overland from the coast in 46 years. Later trips to the pole, including the ones that set up the 17-man station here, have been by air.

Lieut. Vernon Houk, military commander of the station, and scientific leader Palle Mogensen went out to meet Hillary in a snow tractor. "Glad to be here," the rangy New Zealand beekeeper told them.

The Americans led the New Zealand caravan of three tractors two miles to the spot which U.S. scientists compute as the geographic bottom of the world. It is encircled by oil drums.

The group stopped to look at it, but Hillary did not step inside the circle. Then they went to the station mess hall for their first hot meal in several days.

The four New Zealanders who accompanied Hillary are Murray Ellis, Peter Mulgrew, Jim Bates and Derek Wright. Their party made a forced march of 70 miles in 24 hours to arrive in sight of the U.S. base.

In London, The Daily Telegraph says it is "regrettable" that Sir Edmund Hillary's race to the South Pole ahead of Dr. Vivian Fuchs attracted so much publicity.

Other British newspapers in editorials also emphasized that Hillary's feat, though praise-worthy, was only incidental to the main purpose of the Commonwealth trans-Antarctic

Oil Import Curbs Attacked by Martin

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Canada, with a Conservative government talking about diverting 15 per cent of its trade from the U.S. to the United Kingdom, should expect retaliatory trade restrictive steps from the Americans, opposition members suggested in the Commons Friday.

Paul Martin, former minister of health and welfare, and a possible candidate for the Liberal leadership hammered hard on the fact that a government which talks of taking trade away from one country should not be surprised when that country retaliates.

He was referring to the action by the U.S. in bringing Canada under the American "voluntary restriction" program which substantially affects Canadian exports of oil into the western U.S.

He suggested it was significant that Canada up until recent days was excluded from the policy pursued by the American government in restricting oil imports from other producing countries.

"We in this House have an obligation to ask ourselves why this very serious action (restricting Canadian oil exports into the U.S.) has been taken by a friendly country," Mr. Martin said.

A shift of 15 per cent of Canada's trade from one country to another represent some $625,000,000, he pointed out.

"This is an extremely important matter which affects the economic well-being of this country and one which could in a very large measure have much to do with the continuance of the high level of unemployment which now prevails in Canada," Mr. Martin declared.

He suggested it was not unreasonable to conclude that Canada's talk of shifting its trade might have been one reason why the U.S. deliberately resorted to a 15 per cent cut in oil imports from Canada.

'Utter Nonsense'—Fleming

Prime Minister Diefenbaker while he had talked about a proposed 15 per cent shift in trade at a press conference with the parliamentary press gallery, and later at Montreal, had never referred to that proposal in the House of Commons.

Mr. Martin said there were reports that in Washington Mr. Fleming had told his counterparts in the U.S. government not to take the 15 per cent trade shift proposal too seriously.

"Nonsense," shouted Mr. Fleming.

"Does that mean that this proposal is to be taken seriously?" enquired Mr. Martin. "That is pretty wild reasoning," retorted Mr. Fleming.

"It is the first real indication that we have now had that it is the policy of the government to bring about a shift in Canadian purchases," snapped Mr. Martin.

Erhart Regier (CCF-Burnaby-Cootnam) said that the Canadian government simply registering a protest with the U.S. government was not enough.

STARVATION DEATH SEQUEL

Naturopath Probe To Be Considered

The B.C. government will consider a suggested probe into the activities of naturopathic physicians but has taken no such steps as yet, Health Minister Eric Martin said today.

He was commenting on a suggestion from Dr. Lynn Gunn, registrar of the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons, that the government should probe naturopathic activities following the death on Christmas Day of Mrs. Margaret Mary Howard, 30, of Vancouver.

Her death was attributed by Dr. Harold Dyer, North Vancouver coroner, to starvation and dehydration.

Her husband, J. W. Howard, said a Vancouver naturopath ordered his wife to fast for lengthy periods as a treatment for cancer.

Mr. Howard claimed she died because doctors forced her to take food.

"I cannot say whether the government will conduct an inquiry until we know more about the case," Mr. Martin said.

In Vancouver, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said he

Chest Gift to SPCA To Be Given Study

The Community Chest will study the matter of supporting the SPCA when it takes over pound-keeping and dog-licensing in the city, Chest president R. B. Wilson said Friday.

At present SPCA work is supported by the Chest, and a by-law giving the SPCA responsibility for the pound will be given final reading at the next city council meeting.

Under the new plan, the SPCA will give the city $1,500 of the money it collects the first year and increase the payment of $2,500 in three years.

"When all the facts are known in the arrangement between the city council and the SPCA, the Community Chest will give the matter some study," Mr. Wilson said.

No Major Cuts Coming In Defence Spending (From Times News Services)

Canadians need not look to any major cuts in defence spending in the near future to ease their burden of financing federal government operations.

Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes Friday night termed the defence burden "terrible" but said any relief would have to await a comprehensive East-West disarmament plan.

It would be foolish, he said, in the House, for one country to start paring down defence spending until there was such a disarmament pact.

Mr. Pearkes spoke at the close of a day's sitting in which the cost of running the government was the main item of business.

Up for House approval was the 1957-58 defence budget of $1,723,000,000—nearly one-third of the government's total outlay.

Earlier Friday night, after more than five hours of debate, the House voted the government $272,000,000 as an interim money supply to pay January bills pending final approval of the entire spending program.

Mr. Pearkes spoke in reply to Stanley Knowles, deputy CCF leader, who said the minister had talked previously of savings in the defence department.

Mr. Knowles said Prime Minister Diefenbaker returned from the NATO meeting in Paris with the word that defence spending would be colossal and gigantic unless the disarmament deadlock was broken. Was Canada moving toward lower or higher defence spending?

Mr. Pearkes said he couldn't discuss next year's defence estimates at this stage.

Army Construction Program Cut

The minister disclosed he cut $20,000,000 out of the army's construction program in the current fiscal year. Some of the postponed projects might not be undertaken for some years.

In reply to W. J. Henderson, Liberal defence critic, Mr. Pearkes said the army will spend $390,359,000 this fiscal year compared to the original estimate of $400,100,000.

Mr. Henderson said that if the planned $20,000,000 construction program had been carried out the army would have been some $11,000,000 over the original estimate. Mr. Pearkes agreed.

The minister said permanent buildings will be erected for some 70 per cent of Canada's 49,000 soldiers. The others would be in more temporary buildings.

Mr. Pearkes said the original estimate for the navy was $272,798,000 and it now appeared that $271,822,000 will have been spent by the end of the fiscal year March 31.

A proposal for federal government sharing of the costs of a 375-mile development road in northern British Columbia has been stalled by disagreement over the amount of the federal contribution.

Resources Minister Hamilton said in an interview Friday he has not heard from the provincial government since he wrote Nov. 7 to B.C. Mines Minister W. K. Kiernan saying the federal government would be "very reluctant" to pay more than $6,000,000 over a four-year period.

The letter was included in a file of correspondence tabled Friday dealing with the project—a road from Cassiar, near the B.C.-Yukon border, to Stewart on the Pacific Coast.

Grauer, Hickman Boost UBC Drive for Funds

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Ten cents a day . . . If every one of the more than 1,000 Victoria alumni of the University of British Columbia pledges 10 cents a day for the next three years, Victoria will reach its quota of $100,000 in the UBC fund drive which opened Friday night.

The $100,000 required is part of a drive to raise $7,500,000 from all over the province for urgently needed buildings and student facilities on the UBC campus.

Stuart Keate, a graduate of UBC and chairman of the local fund, called on Victoria alumni Friday night to pledge $100 each over the next three years.

This, as he said, worked out at about $33 a year or 10 cents a day and represented "a small return for what the university has given us."

Dr. A. E. Grauer, chancellor of UBC and president of the B.C. Power Corporation, gave the keynote address at a dinner for 200 canvassers and team captains in the Empress Hotel. He spoke of the support the fund had received from alumni and friends throughout Canada.

"In 10 major Canadian centres outside B.C. and in 30 within the province, alumni committees are organized and ready to start the public campaign."

"Alumni have assumed a leadership as community chairmen as well, and they are serving on the committees of all divisions on the mainland. . . ."

"I do not know the exact number of alumni in our total working force, but it must be close to 2,000. This in itself is a tremendous accomplishment."

Present UBC undergraduates had pledged $150,000 to the fund over three years.

of the Advance Gifts committee, said:

"There is a growing demand for higher education throughout Canada and young British Columbians will have to compete with higher standards throughout the land."

PETERSON DONATES $200

B.C. Education Minister Leslie R. Peterson has made a personal contribution of $200 to the UBC fund-raising drive, it was announced Friday night.

"This is doubly gratifying when you remember that Premier Bennett has to match this with another $200," said Times publisher Stuart Keate, Victoria chairman of the UBC fund.

(The B.C. government is pledged to match every dollar contributed up to $7,500,000.)

VICTIM IDENTIFIED

VANCOUVER — Police have identified a woman who leaped to her death from a hospital window Wednesday, 24 hours after giving birth to a baby, as Mrs. Dorothy Middlemass, 34.

They said she opened a fourth-floor window in the maternity building of Vancouver General Hospital, said good-bye to a fellow patient, then leaped.

Undergraduates Give Generously

"There is no other campus in Canada," Dr. Grauer said, "which can remotely approach the UBC record of generous undergraduate giving, to which we owe so many of our present campus facilities."

He added that the advance gifts committee had received in pace-setting and advance gifts from corporations, individual friends, alumni and students a total of $3,520,268.

This was made up as follows: National corporations, $496,750; British Columbia corporations, $1,496,774; national personal gifts, $41,091; British Columbia personal gifts, $1,328,561; university gifts, $152,591; foundations, $4,500.

Dr. Grauer added that, under present economic conditions, the last million or so dollars would be the hardest to raise, yet they were as urgently needed as the first million.

That end of the campaign would be determined, not by corporations or wealthy individuals, but by the response of 21,000 alumni and many thousands of friends.

"The small giver" holds the key to the overall success of our efforts.

UBC Boosts Ambitions of Vic. College

Said Dr. Harry Hickman, principal of Victoria College: "Victoria College has ambitions and the University of British Columbia is sympathetic to our natural growth, which in the next five, 10 and 15 years will be a very rapid growth."

"We are all working in the same cause, that of higher education in British Columbia . . . and Victoria College is part of the University of British Columbia. It is not a question of which horse to ride, since the horses form a team pulling in the same direction."

Offering full support to the UBC drive, Dr. Hickman added: "We are human enough, selfish enough, to believe we shall profit by UBC's growth and, to put it crudely, we think that if we support this drive, the friends of UBC will support our drive later on."

Education Minister Leslie R. Peterson brought greetings from Premier Bennett and his cabinet and said: "We have a university with the most rapidly-growing enrolment in all Canada. In this centennial year we must remember the very great contribution made to our society by UBC."

False Crash Story Brings Fines of $41

A cover-up that didn't fool Colwood RCMP cost Herbert George Robert Leggett, 2676 Selwyn, a total of $41 in RCMP court Friday.

He pleaded guilty to charges of making a false statement to police about an accident and permitting a minor without a licence to drive his car.

Leggett was owner of a car which Robert Rory Fraser, 1005 Dunford, was driving at the time of an accident.

Fraser was on six months' probation for leaving the scene of an accident last May in which an elderly pedestrian was killed. A charge of criminal negligence was later dismissed in Assize Court.

When police attended the recent accident, Leggett first claimed he was driving the car, then said a soldier passenger was driving. Finally he admitted Fraser had been driving.

Fraser pleaded guilty Thursday to careless driving and was remanded until Jan. 8 when he will face another charge of driving while his right to obtain a licence was suspended.

Sauve Qui Peut

AT ITS RECENT SUMMIT CONFERENCE the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was concerned mostly with the weapons of war and diplomacy. But it found time to make a small gesture toward the weapons of economics.

The charter of NATO contains, in its second section, the resolve that its signatories shall co-operate economically and avoid injuring one another's business.

This resolution — written by Canadians and inserted mainly under Canadian pressure — has been far more honored in the breach than in the observance. The original hope that NATO would grow beyond a military alliance into an economic and sometime, perhaps, into a political community of free peoples, is still far from fulfillment. It has been retarded by concentration on military problems and often by the narrow, protectionist policies of the member states, though all of them know that without economic stability they cannot maintain military stability.

In Paris the other day the old hopes and platitudes were repeated as usual. The heads of state agreed that they must consult more earnestly on economic as well as on military matters and that co-operation in business, especially in international trade, was essential.

Was this anything more than the former lip service? The immediate portents are not promising.

For example, the ink on the Paris communiqué was hardly dry before the United States dealt Canada a serious economic blow by restricting the importation of our oil — on the incredible ground that the United States must protect its own oil supplies in case of future war by using them up as quickly as possible.

At the same time other protectionist measures were pending in the American Congress. It will soon decide on a plan to restrict the importation of Canadian minerals. It is talking of whittling down or destroying the reciprocal trade agreements legislation under which all the tariff reductions of the last two decades have been made. The protectionists are in full cry.

In Canada, however, we should not remove the mote from our neighbor's eye too hastily before we cast the beam from our own.

A Canadian Government, elected on a policy of increased trade with Britain, is moving to restrict, among other things, the importation of British textiles, Britain's principal export in our market.

The British Government's perfectly serious offer of free trade with Canada — an authentic expression of the NATO idea — has been brushed aside with almost comical haste and alarm. Our official policy, though its means are unknown, is to restrict total American imports by 15 per cent.

Britain still maintains, for understandable reasons, drastic import restrictions of many sorts and the Labor Party, which may be elected a couple of years from now, would certainly increase them.

France has cut down imports by emergency measures to save its last gold and dollar reserves.

Despite the Paris declarations, the vicious circle of polite economic warfare continues among the military allies.

All this must suit Mr. Khrushchev very well. He has reason to hope for still better prospects. A period of readjustment after a long inflationary boom immediately raises the old cry of sauf qui peut, new demands for the restriction of trade, a futile attempt to export unemployment and, in fact, a determined resistance to unavoidable readjustment.

If this is to be NATO's reaction to a passing change of economic weather, if the picket fence of tariffs and other barriers against trade is to be raised still higher, if the partner nations are to damage one another economically while pledging increased military co-operation, then we may expect little enduring good from the Paris conference.

But such facts are so well known, it is so obvious that military co-operation will be undermined by economic warfare, that these dangers can be forestalled by only a little common sense and enlightened self-interest. Have the NATO peoples sufficient intelligence to distinguish short-run, deceptive gains from long-run and certain losses?

The 'Hillary Touch'

SOME PERSONALITIES, NO matter how quiet and retiring themselves, seem destined to become involved in dramatic and thrilling episodes throughout life. One of these is Sir Edmund Hillary.

No one can ever forget the drama of his conquest of Mount Everest on the eve of the coronation of Queen Elizabeth. It was a feat of daring and adventure, of courage and ability, that caught the imagination and admiration of the world, and particularly of the Commonwealth. It was an achievement of heroic proportions, and it endowed with heroic proportions the quiet, somewhat shy man who carried it out.

Now, once again Sir Edmund Hillary has caught the global limelight. To his thrilling dash to the south pole, retracing in part the path of the ill-fated Scott expedition of 46 years ago, the New Zealander brought the "Hillary touch." He added drama to technical achievement and so created another legend.

'Bounders at Rounders'

THE DENVER POST SAYS that a perusal of the public prints indicates an agreement among Los Angeles sports writers to avoid calling their newly acquired Dodgers by the beloved sobriquet "dem bums."

The nickname is apparently not glamorous enough.

Which leaves you wondering if the Dead End Kids were any more cultured and artistic when they became Angels with Dirty Faces, or if the Dodgers will be more effective under a fancier name.

Possibly the Dodgers, transplanted, deserve something more elegant than "Bums." Perhaps the sports writers might turn for suggestions to the cricketers — those gentlemen of sport with a reputation for dignity.

How would "Bounders at Rounders" do?

School Board Right

Beyond question the Greater Victoria School Board is right in retaining all of the Central Junior High School grounds, intended for use as playing fields.

Future generations will vote the present School Board many thanks for its long range vision rather than accept the short sighted planning of Victoria City Council.

If the City of Victoria had been less greedy during recent years by profitably selling many public properties which appeared suitable for a main fire hall the present situation would never have arisen.

Finally, other municipalities are vitally concerned in this proposed "give-away" and the School Board is protecting their interests by not setting a precedent.

Wages and Prices

Frank H. Partridge, in the "Times" of Dec. 27, continues the ancient and fantastic idea that high wages cause inflation or high prices.

After admitting that wages constitute a diminishing factor in the construction industry he says that higher wages possibly cause the high price of one of the materials of a house, namely lumber. Wages did rise in the lumbering industry from 1936 till 1954 by 250 per cent, but the price of lumber rose by 394 per cent, according to figures supplied by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

According to the Bureau, wages in the agricultural industry rose by 400 per cent between 1937 and 1957 and wages in the meat packing industry probably rose by as much if not more.

According to Mr. Partridge's theory, the price of food should have gone up just as much. But this is not the case. While bacon did go up by 430 per cent, and beef roasts by 400 per cent, bread only went up a little over 240 per cent, milk 350 per cent, butter the same and eggs 350 per cent.

This is not a controversial subject on the fringe of human knowledge like the theory of relativity or the principle of parity, but a fact long known by pure economists and proven by Ricardo in his "Principles of Political Economy" over 139 years ago.

The record continues to show that the law of supply and demand is what causes fluctuation in prices, and the wages paid have nothing more to do with it than the color of the workers' socks. The price of steel in the U.S. rose by 111 per cent from 1946 to 1956 but wages in that industry only rose by 108 per cent in the same period. The cost of newspaper has risen by over 300 per cent since the pre-war years and the cost of labor by 100 per cent, (Times 4-6-57) but we'd be willing to bet that the price of advertising hasn't gone up by exactly that amount.

The fact remains that when the seller confronts the buyer in the market place, as always, the price depends upon the amount of shekels in the pocket of the buyer and not on the wage paid to the producer.

School and Firehall

I have watched with close interest the discussion between the School Board and City Council re allocation of 150 ft. on the school grounds on Yates Street for a firehall. As a former school trustee I have very clear recollections of the generous treatment accorded the Board by the City Council, and I think that the Board should be prepared to reciprocate when the boot is on the other foot and the City is in need of help.

It seems to me a fact that the school population cannot increase at this school. The area is solidly built up now, and further additions could only come in the way of high cost apartments, which would not add but rather subtract from the attendance at this school. The location is evidently the best from the point of view of fire protection, and I do not think it a valid reason that the lives of school children would be endangered. With the excellent work done by the Kiwanis, the police, and in the schools the older children were never more aware of traffic safety procedures.

I also think that the Board should meet with the City Council in the matter of discussing costs. It is, of course, the responsibility of the School Board to provide education for the children in this area, but an equally great and onerous duty lies increasingly heavy on the shoulders of our City fathers in the matter of raising funds to carry on the necessary business of the City. I appeal most strongly to the Board to reconsider decisions they have made with regard to this property.

LOOSE ENDS

The Parallel of Ruffled Men and Grouse

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

A LESSER man than Mr. Horace Snifkin would have regarded the adventure of the ruffled grouse as accidental, trivial and insignificant. My great-minded neighbor immediately recognized its cosmic implications and profound message. In the first place, Mr. Snifkin told me, it was something more powerful than accident, it was surely fate and the inscrutable operations of Providence that brought him to the scene in the first place.

Hutchison

He had not intended that day to leave his warm town house and tramp into the woods, but something called him there. The time had come—he felt it inwardly as a clear message—to visit his summer camp and make sure that all was well there in mid-winter.

AND so, without logical reason and acting on sheer intuition, he found himself, a few days ago, staggering down a wet, half-frozen trail. His intuition had not betrayed him. He had arrived in the nick of time.

The large front windows of his cabin gleamed as usual in the weak rays of a sickly sun and smiled a feeble welcome, but Mr. Snifkin saw at once that something was wrong. It took him a few minutes to realize that in the largest window a hole, perfectly circular and a foot in diameter, had been neatly bored by an instrument and person unknown.

Then Mr. Snifkin became aware of a disturbance inside the cabin. At first he suspected ghosts or mice but neither, he soon realized, could create such havoc as greeted his eyes when the door was burst open.

NOW he perceived a ruffled grouse flying wildly from room to room, beating itself against the windows, scattering Mr. Snifkin's precious papers on the mantel shelf and tearing, with desperate claws, the cloth of the upholstery.

A lesser man would have caught the intruder and wrung its neck. Mr. Snifkin stood observing what he identified immediately as a parable and image of mankind in this first month of a brave new year.

There was the shiny window, bored by a neat, round hole—the glitter which had lured the ruffled grouse into a retreat of apparent safety and thus into imprisonment. Had not humanity, thought Mr. Snifkin, followed exactly the same flight toward a false sanctuary, burst through the sonic barrier, even through the earth's outer atmosphere and, for all its scientific triumph, had found itself newly imprisoned?

THE grouse continued to beat its wings, with pitiable impotence, against the glass and the wooden walls, terrified by Mr. Snifkin who sought only to rescue it.

Thus, thought Mr. Snifkin, lunging wildly after the misguided bird, stumbling over the furniture and frequently falling on his face—thus humanity was beating itself against the walls of its own creation without suspecting for a moment that the means of rescue were at hand. Like the bird, the human animal could not distinguish friend from enemy.

Now more ruffled than the grouse, and grousing even harder, Mr. Snifkin paused, breathless, to observe again the clean, round hole bored by the visitor, through the windowpane.

THERE was an easy avenue of escape. The grouse could fly out as easily as it had flown in. But its intelligence was not sufficient to recognize that simple opportunity.

The grouse hurried itself at every square inch of the wall space except the square foot of clear exit. It could see everything but the one essential thing. It was dying of exhaustion in the presence of freedom and safety.

Could there be, Mr. Snifkin asked himself (from his prostrate position on the floor) a clearer, more authentic portrait of humankind at this moment of history? Were men, indeed, any more intelligent than birds? Which of them, considering their varying opportunities and education, had the smaller bird-brain?

WELL, at last Mr. Snifkin made a lucky lunge and caught the grouse by the legs and carried it gently outside and released it into the welcoming forest.

The grouse flew away to freedom without so much as a word or nod of thanks. It had been saved by the unlikely chance of Mr. Snifkin's visit—or perhaps by a higher logic beyond its knowledge or Mr. Snifkin's?

But the grouse will never know how close it came to a lingering, ghastly end. Mr. Snifkin asked himself, as he brushed the feathers from his clothes and covered the broken window with a piece of tin, whether that other very ruffled grouse called man knew any better.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

Victoria Played Host to the Greatest

By GUS SIVERTZ

IT seems to me in looking down the corridor of years for about half a century that the greatest crime with which television, and radio to a lesser degree, can be charged is that they have robbed us of so much wonderful theatre. And theatre played a very vital role in our lives when I was a little boy in Victoria.

Not alone because it translated us into realms of mime and make-believe in that mysterious land that lay beyond the footlights; or because it brought into our lives a galaxy of thrilling personalities, but because it carried us high up on sun-kissed clouds and at the end left us filled with new, rich experiences.

Victoria was not a large city at that time but it had a reputation for appreciation of something more than bread-and-butter and was on the itineraries of the most brilliant actors and actresses as well as the most gifted musicians.

And as Victoria opened its arms to some of the greatest of those who graced the "green rooms" of their day, so did they reciprocate and like to spend an extra day or so in British Columbia's sea-girt capital.

The old Victoria Theatre—long before the day when Simon Leiser subsidized the swank and gilded Royal Victoria Theatre—was on the southwest corner of Douglas and View, now a part of T. Eaton Company store. It was old even when I knew it and the rain could drum like thunder on its roof which was probably repaired with metal sheets.

It was an ugly building but the ugliness detracted not at all from its glamour once one was inside—perched high up in what we called the "nigger gods"—where we could watch Victoria's elite settle themselves in the boxes and the dress circle.

Big Names

I can still see, in my mind's eye, the posters advertising such famous names as Sir Johnston Forbes Robertson whose great vehicle was "The Passing of the Third Floor Back"; Constance Collier and William Faversham in "Julius Caesar"; Ethel Barrymore, Josef Hoffman, Fritz Kreisler, Marie Lloyd, The Pollards (an operatic group specializing in Gilbert and Sullivan); Anna Held and my favorite above all the others, Sir John Martin Harvey—a frequent and beloved visitor to the boards of the old theatre.

You might think this a sort of "mixed grill" of the great and the not so great—such as those apparently imperishable troupers, Anna Held and Marie Lloyd. We used to think her posters so clever—

"Go to Held"—and shout it at one another on the way to school.

I remember a night when the irrepressible Marie Lloyd held her audience in complete captivity when the lights went out. I forget whether she displayed any particular talent on the stage but her personality and tremendous vitality created a force that one could feel right across the footlights.

Well, right in the middle of one of her rather raucous songs, all the lights failed and the theatre was plunged into unbelievable blackness—the blackness of a deep pit.

Stage hands and ushers scurried about and soon produced candles to create a dim but lovely illumination along the curving footlights, leaving the rest of the theatre in darkness. There was no light for the orchestra but this didn't faze Marie Lloyd for a moment.

Participation

With an aplomb generated by years on the boards she took full control of the situation and calmly invited several scions of Victoria's smart set to climb over from their boxes and dance with her.

It was terrific. And when the light was restored the rest of the program was almost an anti-climax, but so great was her vitality that each of us carried away some of the spirit of this amazing woman.

U.S. Oil Policy: Not Only Unfair and Unfriendly, But Short-Sighted and Unwise

TWO events have occurred recently which might seem to have been as far apart in significance as they were in distance but which, in fact, were definitely related to each other.

The first of these was the action of President Eisenhower in Washington which has the effect of reducing U.S. imports of oil from Western Canada by 15 per cent. The second was a conference in Cairo — an official in theory but made as official as possible by Communist participation and backing — of nationals from more than 40 Asian and African states, including the U.S.S.R.

Where is the connection? The reason given by the U.S. Government for reducing oil imports, even from its friends and allies — a reduction ordered within a few days of the reaffirmation of the NATO Council meeting in Paris of economic interdependence and collaboration, and repeated by President Eisenhower on his return — was the danger to national security if the United States became too dependent on outside sources for its oil supplies in time of emergency or war. It was felt — or alleged — that increased imports were leading to this harmful result by discouraging domestic expansion in the industry.

The U.S. Government have no doubt argued that the maximum development of their own energy resources for their own purposes (an argument Canada has itself often used) was essential for defence and security reasons and justified reduction of imports from a neighbor which was already importing more American oil than it was exporting from Canada. It is an argument that doesn't make any sense — economic or strategic.

By HON. LESTER B. PEARSON

It is also an argument that makes nonsense of Washington's own insistence that defence must be continental, not national, including presumably the development of defence resources of which oil is certainly one. Oil in Alberta is as safe from hostile interference, and as available for U.S. use, as oil in Oklahoma. Rejection of this self-evident truth throws a queer light on the reality behind U.S. proclaimed adherence at NATO to the doctrine of economic co-operation under article 17 of the pact.

It is perfectly true, however, that a significant U.S. dependence on oil imports from overseas, and especially the Middle East, does involve questions of national security. Not only could these supplies be cut off in time of war, they could be jeopardized without war. The Cairo meeting has underlined this danger.

The Asian-African gathering has been — as it was meant to be — primarily an occasion for vehement and irresponsible anti-Western sentiment under the guise of freedom and nationalism for all Asians, Arabs and Africans. It has, of course, been exploited by the Communists as a means of weakening still further the Western position in these parts of the world as a step in strengthening that of the U.S.S.R. It is an easy, and a rewarding, exercise for Communists to put themselves at the head of the forces of anti-colonial and nationalist extremism. They can promise, and exhort and make all the right noises and gestures. They can also obscure the record of Soviet imperialism in destroying the freedom of peoples in the last 20 years, by concentrating a virulent attack on an imperialism which has already disappeared but the fear and impact of which still persists in the minds of Asians and Africans because of the past.

A Communist state like Russia can do more. Again obscuring its own record of aid performance, as compared with that of the United States, it can promise unlimited assistance without any strings attached, if Asian and African peoples drive out Western influence and nationalize Western interests and undertakings.

Yet even without any Communist incitements or promises of co-operation and assistance, the forces of extreme nationalism and anti-colonialism in these areas would be strong and violent. Very often they would inevitably be directed against the West which would be made into the villain of the piece. The incentive to do this would be greatest in those newly-independent countries who are now finding the responsibilities of freedom heavy and difficult and whose governments can use nationalist agitation and passions to conceal their own weaknesses and their own failures.

The Cairo conference would therefore be filled with resounding appeal for equality and freedom, political and economic, even if there were no Communists present. This economic freedom, in their minds, would certainly include the eventual expropriation and nationalization of the huge U.S. oil undertakings in the Middle East. It is, therefore, impossible to be optimistic about the long range future of these undertakings.

One would think therefore that the United States would draw the right conclusions from the Cairo conference and other such manifestations of anti-Western feeling by making itself less dependent on oil supplies from that unstable and insecure part of the world. This should mean encouraging rather than discouraging the development of Canadian oil resources.

Therefore the recent United States action restricting Canadian imports of oil by 15 per cent is not only unfair and unfriendly to Canada, it is short-sighted and unwise from the United States point of view also.

Will Russ Be Amenable?

NEW YORK—The world this week moved tremulously into the first new year of the space age. What will this fateful year bring forth?

In New York, few people appeared to be worrying as the new year was born. Times Square was its usual gay, giddy, ghastly New Year's Eve self. Streets were jammed and the speed-differential between cars and pedestrians was even more than usually in favor of the pedestrians.

Everything looked hilariously normal but everything was different—and every one of the revellers, in the back of his mind, knew it. The impossible had happened. This race of inspired tinkers, this land of Ford, Edison and the hot rod had been overtaken by a race of Mujiks, Lower Slobovians and No-Goodniks. This was even worse than being defeated at baseball.

At the United Nations, a few of the hardcore, between-sessions personal sat in the near-empty delegates' lounge and asked one another, "What sort of a year is it going to be?"

There was little agreement on the answer.

NEW ERA

The man of the street, the reveller in Times Square, has an almost instinctive idea that the world has moved into a new era. Everything is different. The Sputnik circling the globe has become a symbol of the new age in which boundaries, among other things, are becoming meaningless. In this new age people want a new approach, a new search for sanity.

Many of the professionals here at the United Nations feel less sure, less hopeful. For them the Sputnik itself is not very important. It's simply a demonstration of the technical excellence of the Russians of which they had been increasingly aware for some time. The big thing is the missile which put the Sputnik up there. Now that the Russians possess this awesome missile, will they be more amenable or less? This is the great question which 1958 will reveal.

Is this the year when the world will be launched into a new and more terrifying arms race or is this the year when sanity begins to return?

I've spoken to diplomats in map-lined offices and newsmen in bottle-lined bars and the only opinion on which all agree is that the world is in a state of flux and that is reflected at the United Nations. The great glass tower is like a test tube in which a chemical reaction is seething. Something new and wondrous may come out—or the tube may blow up.

RUSS SCARED

Great powers have been released in this chemical reaction, a reaction in which the Sputnik has acted as a powerful catalyst. First there's the new European community which seems to be taking shape, a community which could grow into an Atlantic community of the sort Canada has long advocated. It's interesting to recall that Stalin was one of the inspirers and architects of the Atlantic military alliance. Perhaps Mr. Khrushchev will now be an architect of the more important Atlantic economy community.

Faced with this Western reaction to the Sputnik, some diplomats think the Russians are willing to negotiate.

"The Russians talk best when they talk scared," commented one professional. "... and I think they're scared now."

And perhaps the same thing applies to the Americans.

But if there is progress toward disarmament, it will be strictly limited. Big sweeping plans are now recognized as impossible and there's a feeling that both sides now view disarmament more realistically. The West, for example, knows that many past demands for inspection have been impossible. It's being pointed out that some of the snooping we wanted to do wouldn't be permitted even for Russian civilians, let alone foreigners.

There's strong support here for the Canadian view that the West must always be willing to talk. As one Canadian disarmament specialist pointed out, talks over an Austrian peace treaty dragged on for years, then suddenly the Russians decided that it was in their interest to sign a treaty and the job was done.

HOPEFUL ASPECT

But there's another hopeful element and this is the growing demand of world public opinion for disarmament. Public opinion has already been influential in forcing the United States to agree to investigate chances for new disarmament talks.

Public opinion also makes its impact on the monolithic Russian structure. In particular, the Russians, like the West, are struggling to win the support of the Afro-Asian nations and they are also beginning to woo the South Americans. If either side wins decisively in this struggle it will have the other surrounded militarily and economically isolated.

Neither side can thus remain intransigent, forever ignoring world demands for compromise. This is perhaps the most optimistic aspect of this new year. It also emphasizes the important role in the year ahead that Canada is likely to play as the leader of the smaller nations and as a member in 1958 of the Security Council.

Ike Reviews Record Budget

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower reviewed his State of the Union message and briefly discussed his proposed $74 billion budget with members of the cabinet Friday.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said cabinet members were furnished a draft of the state-of-the-union message before they went to the White House. He said no major changes were made at the cabinet meeting, which lasted more than two hours.

Officials said the huge spending program, a peacetime record, is complete except for some minor adjustments in defence items. It contains about $40 billion to meet Russia's missile threat.

Congress reconvenes Tuesday. Congress will be asked to approve a four-year, billion-dollar aid-to-education program stressing science and mathematics. The pressure for hauling abreast of Russia has all but eliminated any talk of a tax cut this year, however politically desirable such a move might be.

Russ Hit Snag in Firing Sputnik III---U.S. Chief

WASHINGTON (AP)—The chief of the United States Vanguard missile project says the Russians probably have run into difficulties trying to shoot a new Sputnik into orbit around the earth.

At the same time, Dr. John Hagen cautions that the next attempted launching of a Vanguard rocket still may not result in placing a U.S. satellite in space.

Hagen commented in a written reply to questions submitted by the Associated Press as he left for Russia's half-ton Sputnik II, launched Nov. 3, already is or soon will be the only man-made satellite aloft.

MAY BE DOWN

Premier Bulganin said in Moscow Friday night that Sputnik I, launched Oct. 4, will burn out by Monday if not before. "For all I know it may have burned out already," he told reporters.

At Cambridge, Mass., the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory said it had no word on the fate of Sputnik I, although officials there had predicted that the 184-pound sphere would plunge to a flaming end in the atmosphere on or about Thursday of this week.

Hagen appeared anxious to stress that the next U.S. firing, like that of Dec. 6, will also be mainly a test of the complete rocket. "An orbiting satellite would be more in the nature of a by-product of a successful launching," he said.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

TV Ends Free Counsel

LONDON—At random...

With Britain very much in the middle as regards the satellite rivalry between the States and Russia, it is noticeable that comment heard around the place here has a heavy bias against the U.S. The three most overworked cracks:

"When the satellites cross America they don't go 'bleep bleep bleep,' they go 'he he he!'"

"They now serve the Sputnik Cocktail in the States—vodka and sour grapes."

"When the Americans eventually get a satellite up into space it has been decided what its name will be—Rip Van Winkle."

Reyburn

Is possession of a television set to become the yardstick of the financial standing of people in this country? Said the judge in a case in which both litigants had gone to court with the help of legal aid:

"Anyone who applies for legal aid should confess that they have bought a television set and their application should be dismissed. Anyone able to provide himself with a television set should be able to finance his own actions in court."

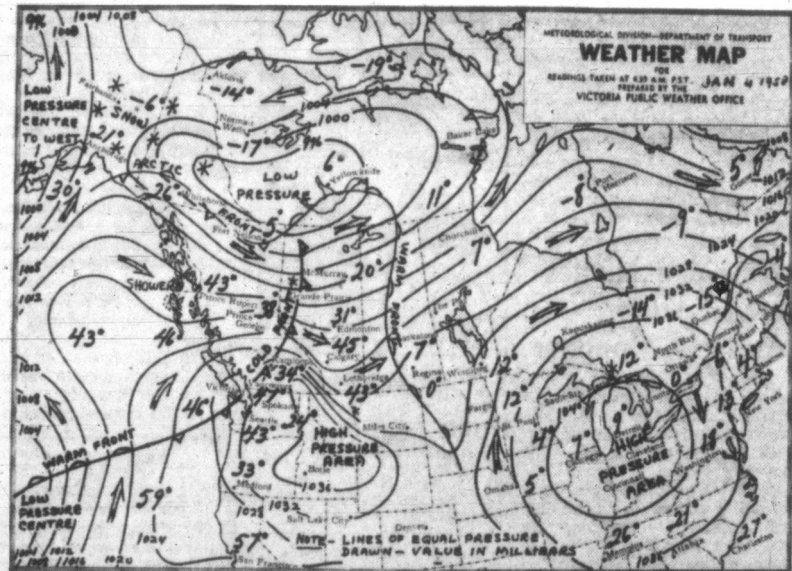

Says the National Assistance Board, responsible for checking finances of those who apply for legal aid:

"We have no jurisdiction in assessing the contents of a person's house to decide whether he has sufficient funds. But if a man bought a television set after he had been granted legal aid, we would take action."

Something that has always puzzled me... Why is the ordinary quarto typing paper in use in Canada and the States larger (half inch wider and an inch longer) than English paper? After contacting numerous paper-makers, stationers, etc., I haven't been able to get an explanation any better than "It just is that way."

The fight to retain London's old gas lamp posts has spread from St. Johns Wood, where the battle against modern street lighting was lost, to Bayswater, where famed cartoonist Ronald Searle is heading the citizens' committee trying to block the local council's efforts to do away with them.

Resigned to the fact that it is a losing battle, he has bought one (for $14) from the council and has set a fashion for installing these bits of London nostalgia in your back garden.

LITTLE SLIP OF PENCIL MADE BIG DIFFERENCE

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It was real easy, that 40 strokes for one hole attributed to amateur golfer Frank Hardison, La Canada, Calif., in the Los Angeles Open Friday.

It was merely a slip of a pencil.

What happened was that Hardison's scorer wrote "40" for his score on the 18th hole and it should have been 40 for the last nine holes.

But Hardison, without looking, signed the card. And once a card is signed, it cannot be changed.

So the score went on the big board, and into the records, as 45-74-119.

Actually, the score was 45-40-85.

THE SCOREBOARD BY Harry Grayson

NEW YORK (NEA)—Now that such a novelty as National League baseball has been tested on the New York market and found wanting, a sport has moved in.

When the Roller Derby finally was driven out of New York in 1954, it was rated as something in a class with watching people jump off high buildings. But with no boxing to speak of and a television program needed, the Roller Derby is back.

"Our trouble in the early '50s was that we ran 52 weeks a year," says Ken Nyden. "We are coming back as a sport, so we will run only 28 weeks and be on national TV each Sunday afternoon. Just like any other sport."

Nyden is telecasting the Derby. And to give you a rough idea of how bad the back-busting business is, the show is being put on at the 9th Regiment Armory by James A. Farley, Jr., a New York boxing commissioner, who seemed to inherit a rich sports background from his father, Big Jim.

A Roller Derby publicity release tells you that young Jim "signed Buddy Atkinson as manager of the New York Chiefs team. Farley, long a Roller Derby fan, has always admired the ability of Atkinson on the banked track as a player and leader."

The last time we saw the Roller Derby a gal was stirring up most of the excitement. Marjorie Claire Brasuhn, better known as Toughie Brasuhn, is coming back as a Blonde Bombshell, by the way. She made the Roller Derby the biggest thing since wife-beating. She was a gal who preferred flat fights to dancing, and describing her you spoke admiringly of her left hook.

There was the time, for example, that helmets were added to normal equipment used by Roller Derby combatants. Toughie went into a rage.

"There is a gal with a hair-do," she raved, "that I want to rip open from ear to ear. What's this game coming to when they're wearing helmets?"

Toughie is about 34 now, but advance estimates of her condition insist she is meaner than a hangover. If this is so, we are going to start a fan club for her.

A natural rivalry between the Roller Derby teams should keep Toughie in this frame of mind. With starting logic, Farley is calling one team the New York Chiefs. The other will be the Brooklyn Red Devils.

The affair opened last week. It is running three nights a week for the benefit of in-the-flesh fans and on Sunday afternoon the entire vista of Roller Derby will open for the national TV audience.

Roller Derby rules call for two teams of men, with such as Billy Bogash and Ken Monte and Farley's favorite, Atkinson, to get on a banked circular track and roller skate around until they become dizzy. The object is to pass each other and knock people down while doing it. It always was suspected that the better Derby skaters believed they could catch up with themselves.

Then two teams of girls take the track. It is something like a wrestling tag team match in this respect but please don't mention razzle-dazzle around the Roller Derby because, we have their word for it, the thing now is a sport.

Later in the season the Bay Bombers are coming to the big town. And then the Clippers and Westerners. There are several Roller Derby road shows, you see.

Who needs the Dodgers and Giants? And who says New York is a dead sports town?

Toughie Brasuhn is back.

MONTREAL (BUP)—The 14 best badminton players in the country will begin the grueling week-long Thomas Cup trials Monday at the Strathgowan Club in Toronto, with particular interest centered on developing a stand-out doubles team.

The trials will culminate in the Strathgowan invitational tournament and selection committee officials, headed by chairman Hilles Pickens of Montreal, will use both events as a yardstick in determining the final make-up of the team which will meet the United States in the North American tie, tentatively set for Feb. 28 to March 1.

Six players and two alternates will be chosen to represent Canada against the U.S. either at Long Beach, Calif., or Vancouver, B.C. The Thomas Cup, the Davis Cup of the badminton world, will feature competition among 23 nations, highlighted by defending champion Malaysia.

This will mark the fourth time Canada has met the U.S. in the triennial competition and the Dominion has yet to get by the Americans.

"Our big trouble has been in developing a doubles team of international calibre," said Pickens, who is also president of the Canadian Badminton Association. In fact our doubles team has yet to score a point against the United States."

Failure of the doubles team cost Canada the North American tie in 1955 against the U.S. at Winnipeg. Canada won four of the five singles matches, but dropped all four doubles matches.

CUTTS TO COACH
"We're still loaded with very good singles players so we're not too worried there," Pickens said. "It's the doubles that we'll be trying to develop."

For the first time the Canadian team will be coached by a pro, former world professional champion Stan Cutts of the Montreal Badminton and Squash Club, who will work with the team throughout the trials and the cup matches.

Susan Butt Eliminated In Dixie Open

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Susan Butt of Victoria was defeated 6-2, 6-1 here Friday by Mrs. Laura Lou Kunnen of Clearwater, Fla., seeded first in the Dixie tennis tournament.

Mrs. Kunnen defeated Elena Osuna of Mexico City 6-2, 6-4, in a third-round match begun Thursday, then took on the British Columbia girl.

Most players had two matches Friday because rain curtailed the Thursday schedule. Mrs. Louise Brown of Toronto, No. 2, defeated Judy Alvarez, Tampa, 6-1, 6-1.

In other third-round play, Henri Rochon of Montreal was eliminated by Armando Vieira of Brazil, 6-2, 6-2; Vieira then moved through the quarter-finals with a 6-0, 6-0 win over Roger Becker, English Davis Cup veteran.

Frick Backs Majors' Plan For 'Orderly Expansion'

By FRED DOWN

NEW YORK (UP)—Commissioner Ford Frick today threw his weight behind a proposal designed to pave the way for "an orderly expansion" of major league baseball.

The proposal, drafted by a four-man committee and announced in Frick's office late Friday, will be submitted to the joint major league meetings in New York, January 25. Since Frick will cast the deciding vote in case of a tie, it is regarded as certain the plan will be carried.

The proposal reaffirms Frick's oft-stated principle that New York city should not be closed to the National League because of the exodus of the Giants and Dodgers. And it wipes out the old principle whereby major league clubs "owned" territory.

"If this proposal is passed, it should stop the endless bickering and confusion that has attended franchise transfers so far," said Frick. "In effect, we are attempting to lay new ground rules that will help in the orderly expansion of baseball."

The committee, chosen by Frick at the December baseball meetings at Colorado Springs, is composed of Frank Lane, general manager of the Cleveland Indians; Gabe Paul, general manager of the Cincinnati Reds; Dick Meyer, vice-president of the St. Louis Cardinals; and Roy Egan, attorney for the Chicago White Sox.

The plan asks that major league rule No. 1 be changed (rule 1 states that a franchise change to a city in a rival circuit must be approved by the unanimous consent of the 16 clubs) to include the following:

1. Cities with populations of 2 million or more should be eligible for two (i.e. a second) major league teams.
2. The city must have a park not less than five miles from the park of the existing club—although, in certain circumstances, the teams could occupy the same park.
3. A team invading minor league territory should compensate the minor league team for a proportionate share of its actual expenses.
4. New rules should make it definite how territory is to be considered when it has been abandoned by a major league club.

RECOMMEND CHANGE
Frick also said the committee will recommend that the amended rule will limit any city to two major league clubs.

Assuming the proposal is passed, here's how it would be applied to New York City:

1. The Yankees could not veto the entrance of another team.

STRONG-ARM STUFF
For weak arm is system being used by New York Yankee pitcher Whitey Ford, who punches bag to strengthen arm that troubled him most of last season. (NEA).

FIGHT RESULTS
NEW YORK—Paolo Rosi, 135½, New York, outpointed Johnny Busso, 141, New York, 10 rounds.
SAN DIEGO, Calif.—Billy Peacock, 120, Los Angeles, knocked out Jorge Herrera, 118, Guadalajara, Mexico, 2.

That Bad Period Still Plagues Cats

Cougars Drop 8th In a Row

High-flying Vancouver Canucks hammered out points 44 and 45 on their race to a Western Hockey League Coast Division title Friday night as they handed the hapless Victoria Cougars their eighth straight loss, 5-3, at Vancouver Forum.

In the cleanest WHL game in many recent weeks, with only three penalties called throughout the 60 minutes, Vancouver forged into a five-point lead over second-place New Westminster Royals and left the Cats mired a full 26 points off the league lead pace.

The first period provided the 4,000 Forum fans with good hockey and tense, exciting action as the teams traded goals. Canucks' Phil Maloney scored the opener at 5:31 and Cougar right-winger Blinky Boyce answering back at 18:18.

Victoria's chronic second period lag caught up with them again and Vancouver roared into a two-goal lead on a pair of markers by Jackie McLeod.

WIDE OPEN
A Cougar defensive lapse left McLeod wide open in front of goalie Emile Francis, and he rammed home Bill Polk's pass before Francis could move on the play at the 57-second mark.

McLeod's second tally came at 7:25 on a breakaway that beat Francis cleanly as the Vancouver forward drilled home the puck from about 10 feet out following a pass from centre Phil Maloney.

Canucks added the winner at the five-minute point in the final frame when poor Victoria defensive play gave Elliot Chorley an opening to beat Francis on a rebound following a shot on goal by Red Johansen.

COUGARS RALLY
Cougars came alive at this point to climb back into contention on tallies by Colin Kilburn and Frank Milne.

Kilburn was back on his old left wing post along with Gordie Wilson and Doug Macauley. The move followed the recall of winger Larry Leach to Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League Thursday.

With only minutes remaining in the game, Cougar coach Pat Egan pulled Francis in place of a fourth attacking forward.

The sight of the invitingly open goalmouth was just too much for Phil Maloney and he de-deaved a long shot from centre to give Vancouver the insurance they needed for the win.

MEET ROYALS
Cougars get their last chance for a week to pull out of the tailspin they are in when they meet New Westminster Royals tonight in Queen's Park Arena.

Already in the second half of their schedule, the Victoria club needs some combination of wins to give them a minimum of 46 more points in their remaining 34 games, if they are to have a chance at a playoff spot in the Coast Division.

Hard-working Emile Francis made 38 saves during the game, while Marcel Pelletier, in the Canucks nets, stopped a total of 28 drives aimed at him.

Cougars' next home game will be played against New Westminster in Memorial Arena on Saturday, Jan. 11.

Winnipeg Names Albert Usner As New Manager

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Winnipeg and St. Cloud of the Class C Northern League Friday announced appointment of new managers for the 1958 baseball season.

Albert Usner, 25-year veteran of major and minor league ball, will manage Winnipeg. He managed Decatur, Ill., to the midwest league title in 1957.

Usner, who lives in Decatur, played with Detroit Tigers from 1942 to 1944, then with Cincinnati in 1945. He also played Triple A ball with Buffalo, Columbus, Hollywood, Baltimore and Milwaukee.

Richie Klaus, 34, of Jamaica, L.I., a veteran of the Class D circuits, was named playing manager for St. Cloud.

Like Magic Takes Santa Anita Race

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Like Magic survived a rush by Infantry in the stretch and won the $10,000 feature race at Santa Anita Park Friday.

The winner, owned by Rex Ellsworth and ridden by Willie Shoemaker, grabbed an early lead and defeated Infantry by a neck.

Like Magic paid $5.60, $4 and $3.60. Infantry returned $7.60 and $5.40. Bisco ran third in the 1/16-mile event and paid $3.50.

The time was 1:42 4/5.

WARRIORS BOOST LEAD

Flyers Falter After Fast Start

By the Canadian Press

Winnipeg Warriors, leaders in the Western Hockey League's Prairie Division, consolidated their position and moved five points ahead of their nearest rivals Friday night.

Winnipeg outclassed Edmonton's second-place Flyers at Edmonton.

Flyers led 2-1 at the end of the first period. But there their superiority ended.

A crowd of 4,244 fans saw the Warriors gain control and score a further four goals without reply from the hosts.

Winnipeg started in a flurry and Glover scored twice for the visitors, with Howard Glover, Gordie Redahl and Dick Lamoureux adding singles. For the Flyers, Jerry Melnyk scored twice.

In the second session, Redahl scored with a high flyer. Both third period goals came from Douglass.

The Flyers were outshot 40-29.

Winnipeg travels to Calgary tonight in the prairie division while Victoria travels to New Westminster on the coast. Coast and prairies combine in a Seattle visit to Saskatoon-St. Paul.

Rudy Isn't Planning Spectacular NHL Exit

Two new coaches, poles apart in temperament and experience but facing a common dilemma, take over National Hockey League clubs tonight.

The two are Sid Abel and Rudy Pilous and their common problem is getting their teams—Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks—up from the bottom of the league and into the playoffs.

'Artificial' Team Events Cut From Olympic Program

MONTREAL (CP)—The International Olympic Committee has cut out artificial team events—those depending on addition of scores in individual competitions—and aims at a 15-per-cent overall reduction in number of athletes at the 1960 games in Rome.

Both measures were opposed by Communist countries at the IOC meeting in Sofia last fall.

A circular letter dealing with these and other changes was issued in December by IOC President Avery Brundage of Chicago. Brundage also outlined clarifications in amateur status for the Olympics and the ques-

Gary Came Close To All-Time Mark

By GRAHAM COX

All season long, ever since the Brunswick-Balke-Collender people refurbished his alleys, Larry Marshall has been predicting that his would be the first house in town to record an over-1,000 fivepin mark this season.

His prophecy has come true, but he didn't have 17-year-old Gary Roskamp in mind when he made the hypothetical wager.

Rolling in Larry's holiday tournament, Gary came within 20 pins of what is believed could have been the highest three-game series ever rolled on Victoria alleys.

He swept through the singles event, pocketing the

Hoad Takes Series Lead

SYDNEY, Australia (UP)—Lew Hoad of Australia, playing some of his best tennis, took a lead of two matches to one over Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles today with a 6-3, 13-11, 6-4 victory before a capacity crowd at White City Stadium.

The gate produced nearly 10,000 pounds ($22,400) for promoter Jack Kramer. Hoad and Gonzales are scheduled to play a 100-match series.

Meanwhile, Kramer awaited the appearance of Australia's Mervyn Rose to make him an offer to turn professional.

Albani Whips Thunderbirds

ALBANI—Albani Athletics downed the University of B.C. Thunderbirds, 62-46, Friday night in an exhibition senior "A" men's basketball game.

Lyle Levy scored nine points and Barry Drummond and Lance Stephens each scored eight points for UBC.

For Albani, Al Brown got 14 points, followed by Neal Dirome with five.

Albani led 33-19 at half time in the colorless game before only 300 fans.

Thunderbirds meet the Athletics again tonight.

Stole the Ring Tops Queen's Plate List

TORONTO (CP)—Stole the Ring, an unbeaten filly owned by Miss Blanche Armstrong of Toronto, heads the Ontario Jockey Club list, released Friday, of the 106 two-year-olds still eligible for the 99th running of the Queen's Plate in June.

The filly, who won all her five starts and $33,600 last year, has the best record of what the jockey club says is a bumper crop of two-year-olds, predicting a "wide-open" field for the Queen's Plate.

tion of payment allowed for "broken time."

A summary of the IOC action along with Brundage's circular, now has been issued by A. Sydney Dawes of Montreal, Canada's representative on the IOC.

Elimination of artificial team events affects the modern pentathlon, gymnastics, equestrian, cycling and fencing.

In its aim to reduce the overall number of competitors, the IOC found it inopportune now, however, to eliminate any specific sport because the program for the 1960 games already had been fixed.

But member federations were asked to limit to 16 the number of a country's teams in the various sports classifications.

Actually, two additional sports—volleyball and archery—were added to the recognized list, making a total of 21. At least 15 must be on the games program.

The appeal to member federations to reduce numbers of competitors was bolstered by the IOC's action in trimming the number of events in canoeing, shooting and gymnastics. Number of reserves in various sports was also reduced.

RULE SATISFACTORY

The Olympic amateur status rule was considered satisfactory, Brundage reported, "although adverse criticism has resulted from its enforcement, or rather lack of enforcement, in some quarters."

As a means of clarification, the IOC listed six classifications of ineligible:

Those who have participated for money, for merchandise prizes easily converted into money and, without proper permission as set forth within the rules, for prizes exceeding $40 in value;

Those who have been paid for training or coaching others for organized competition;

Those who have capitalized on their athletic fame in any way by profiting commercially or by accepting special inducements to participate;

Those who have accepted reimbursement for expenses in excess of actual outlay;

Those who have decided to become professional athletes and are participating to enhance their commercial value;

Those who have neglected either at home or abroad, their usual vocation or employment for sport competition.

BROKEN TIME

On the question of broken time—payment allowed because of an athlete's absence from employment—no change was made. Exceptional cases remain with the national Olympic committees concerned.

Athletes who receive formal payment for broken time are ineligible for the Games. Brundage said either they are being paid for playing or else for work they haven't done—a material gain either way.

In special instances, the IOC recognized, there may be suffering because of the absence of the breadwinner and help in supporting the family may be needed.

In any event, Olympic funds must not be used and no money must be given to athletes.

Anthony May Beat Durelle by Neck

By OSCAR FRALEY

PLEASANTVILLE, N.J. (UP)—Tony Anthony did neck exercises until every body watching began to get dizzy—and then he did more.

"That's right," said Ernie Braca, his manager. "Keep at it."

For, as Braca sees it, that neck could well determine the future of boxing's light heavyweight and heavyweight divisions.

There is a theory in this wind-swept boxing camp not far from Atlantic City that these exercises will assist young Tony in building up a resistance to a knockout punch. And it is an ability, they admit, which he needs desperately.

"He has all the talents that any fighter has ever had," Braca asserted fondly. "He can hit with anybody and box with anybody, and that includes Floyd Patterson."

But Tony, a slender, hard-muscled picture fighter who carries horse shoes in either hand, is as suspect as a three-time loser when it comes to absorbing a wallop to the whiplashes.

Right now he is training to take on Canada's Yvon Durelle at Madison Square Garden next Friday. It is a bout which could lead Tony back to the threshold of great opportunity.

He stubbed his toe the last time, a pappy guy named Archie Moore clouting Tony into limbo when the young upstart attempted to wrest the light heavyweight crown from Archie's graying locks.

Anthony, however, hasn't given up. If he had such a tendency, he might have stepped out of the ring for good long ago.

He's the fellow, you may remember, who was on the 1952 Olympic team with his pal, Patterson. Turning pro, he won eight in a row by knockouts—and then was flattened himself.

It's curtains when Chin Meets Leather

Tony bounced back to win 10 in a row, six by knockouts. Then Tony was flattened again.

"That happened at Johnstown, Pa.," Tony recalls with a wry grin. "A disastrous place. They had a flood there, too."

Anthony won another pair and then, monotonously, was kayoed himself.

Since then it's been up again, down again. He flattened Chuck Spieser to win a shot at Moore and was put in cold storage himself.

He can punch, as attested by his record of 23 knockouts in 31 fights. But whenever somebody lands one from the outside, Anthony does the most complete blackout since the Battle of Britain. All five of his losses have resulted when his chin came in

Johnny's Prize Protege Key to Blackburn Hopes

By ROGER STONEBANKS

LONDON (CP)—Johnny Carey of Blackburn Rovers is a soccer manager with three ambitions.

He hopes to establish his outstanding player as England's outside right; to get Blackburn into the English League's first division, and to revive some of the club's past glories.

After four years at the helm of the Lancashire club, Carey is well on the way to his first two goals and is building a solid foundation for the third.

TALENTED PLAYER

Carey's prize protege, 23-year-old Bryan Douglas, performed with distinction in his international debut last October against Wales and played for England in two subsequent internationals.

But the youngster still has to prove himself against all comers as the logical successor of Blackpool's Stanley Matthews, who has virtually monopolized the international outside right post since 1938.

Club secretary R. H. Taylor says Blackburn's chances of promotion from the second division are "reasonably good" and the team is in a more favorable position now than for several years. At the halfway mark, the Rovers are fourth, within easy striking distance of a first or second-place finish with its automatic reward of promotion next season.

Apart from its financial rewards, a chance to compete with Manchester United, Wolverhampton and the other members of soccer's aristocracy would put the Rovers back on the glory road that brought them six Football Association Cup victories, including a string of three straight, and two First Division titles.

But since the Rovers' last cup victory in 1928 the pickings have been lean, culminating in their demotion to the Second Division 10 years ago.

In his playing days with Manchester United, Carey occupied every position except outside left. He has a cup winners' medal, a league championship medal and the footballer-of-the-year award. He has captained Manchester and Ireland, his home country. At his playing peak, from 1947 to 1952, he was regarded as one of the best all-round players in the game.

Now Carey is aiming to be as great a manager as he was a soccer player.

He has borrowed from Matt Busby, his old manager at Manchester United, his successful youth policy. From his Blackburn predecessor, Jack Bestall, he inherited two England internationals—Ronnie Clayton, right half, and Bryan Douglas, right wing.

The average age of his team is 23 and seven of the first team were signed as graduates from junior ranks, including Clayton, Douglas and Welsh international Roy Vernon. Of the other four starters he paid just under £18,000.

Keg-Hurdlers Try For World Crown

GROSSINGER, N.Y. (UP)—Sixteen skaters will vie here today for the title of World Barrel Jumping Champion.

The present champ, Leo Le Bel, 27, of Hartford, Conn., will defend his keg-hurdling title. His major competition should come from Paul Bonafé, 21, a policeman from Alma, Quebec; Ken Le Bel, 20, brother of the champ; Terry Browne, 36, of Detroit, who held the title from 1951 to 1955, and Bob Olson, of Glendale, Cal.

Whitely Ford, New York Yankee pitcher, and Barney Ross, former boxing champion, will judge the competition.

NOBODY HELPED LIONS; BILL TO RESIGN POST

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bill McMahan says he will resign Monday night as president of the B.C. Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union and indicated he made the decision partly because he doesn't agree with the way the league conducts its operations.

"I don't agree with the rules we have to work under in this league," he said. "We don't have a league in the real sense of the word—it's more of an association with everyone out for himself."

"League members should be helping each other in every way that will make the league stronger. I can't speak for other clubs, but if anyone has done anything to help Vancouver I haven't heard of it."

Smiley Has Hot Round Early in LA Tourney

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Smiley Quick, who usually has one torrid round in a major golf tournament, shot a four-under par 67 Friday and took the first round lead in the $35,000 Los Angeles open.

Displaying an excellent game with his irons, the squat, 48-year-old Quick played the par 36-35-71 Rancho Golf Club in 34-33-67.

Tied at 68 were 47-year-old E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, with a 34-34 that could have been better but for a missed short putt on the 17th green; Frank Stranahan, 35-33; Bob Rosburg, 35-33, and a newcomer, Stan Dudas of Philadelphia, 34-34.

Bo Winger finished with a 36-33, and tied with him at 69 was Mike Krak.

The 70 bracket was well-populated, including such threats as Jay Hebert and Chick Harbert.

The 71 bracket was even more so, including Al Balding of Toronto who had 35-36.

Two other Canadian entrants didn't fare as well. Jerry Magee of Toronto shot a 77 and Bob Wylie of Calgary carded an 81.

BRIDGING TIME ON GUARD DUTY

A soldier on patrol was required to cross a river and five bridges. This got monotonous after awhile and he decided that every day, for as many days as possible, he would choose a different route. Each route would be one that would require his crossing every one of the five bridges once and only once.

For how many successive days was he able to pick a different route? His tour of duty starts on the near side of the stream and he finishes on the far side.

Answer: He was able to choose a different route for 10 days.

MAGIC WITH A TUMBLER

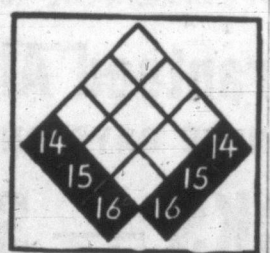

WHO ARE THE GIRLS?

Each circle at right contains an object that stands for part of a girl's name. They are fairly common names and when you have guessed the object you will probably guess the rest of the name quickly. For instance, the first name at top left is Carol or Caroline—the object, of course, is a car. How quickly can you name the rest?

Answers: Carol, Barbara, Corolla.

ADDS UP TO FUN

The nine vacant square and the six number squares in the design above constitute a numfound as follows:

Write the numbers from one to nine, both inclusive, in the nine blank squares in such order that the sum of the three numbers in any row is equal to the number given at the bottom of the row.

How quickly can you do it?

Answers: 14, 15, 16, 17.

READ THEIR CODE?

Smart is a puzzle fan, and he and his friend Robinson correspond with each other in code. If Smart signs himself TNBSU, what is Robinson's code signature?

Answer: The Robinsons.

PARTY STUNTS

- Unless you are an exceptional person, you cannot—
1. Stand for five minutes without moving, while blindfolded.
 2. Stand with both your heels together against a wall and pick up something from the floor.
 3. Light a candle while balancing your weight on one knee.
 4. Turn around rapidly five times and then walk a straight line.

Try these feats and test them on your friends. It's a good routine for breaking the ice at a party.

WHAT DO YOU SAY ABOUT THIS?

If 10 inches is shorter than a foot, say "wrong," unless 13 is not shorter than a foot, in which case, say "right." Right or wrong?

BRAIN TEASER

Don't give this more than a minute's thought, for it's not worth it. You have seven eggs in a dish. You want to divide the seven eggs among seven persons. You want to do it so that you have one egg left in the dish. How can you do it?

Answer: Give six to six people.

TAKES A LITTLE TIME

An old brain teaser, so old that it must go back to the first days of town clocks, has bobbed up again. Do you remember it?

"Mr. Little's daughter eloped with her sweetheart and the father pursued the runaway couple. What time was it?"

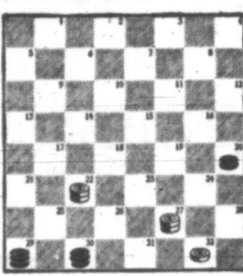

Answer: When the clock struck twelve.

RIDDLE ME THIS

If you were asked the name of the town most frequently drawn in the holiday season, what should you answer?

Answer: Town is not a town.

Ex-Confidential Editor Kills Wife, Self

NEW YORK (AP)—Howard Rushmore, former editor of Confidential magazine and anti-Communist crusader, shot and killed his estranged wife Friday night and then killed himself, climaxing an argument in a taxicab.

His pretty blonde wife, Frances, a former newspaper woman in her late 30s, was the mother of two children by a previous marriage.

Rushmore, 45, one time film critic for the Daily Worker, who left the Communist party and the paper in the 1930s, moodily told a woman friend Thursday night that he was "feeling low" because his wife Frances had left him two days before Christmas.

Cab driver Edward Pearlman picked up the pair at Madison Avenue and 97th Street, not far from the Rushmore residence.

He said the woman jumped into the taxi and tried to keep the man from entering. But the man shoved his way into the cab, telling the driver: "I'm her husband, don't worry about it."

Pearlman said the woman shouted: "If he's going to ride in this taxi, I don't want to. Drive me to the station house."

The driver said the couple continued to argue as he headed for a police station located on East 104th Street. At one point the man said: "Wait, I'll give you money." The woman replied: "I don't want your money."

There was silence, Pearlman said, then the woman screamed, "Oh, my God!" and shots rang out.

"There was boom-boom and flashes," the driver said. "I turned around. She was on the seat and he had a gun to his temple. He shot himself. I drove to the station and ran in."

A police examination showed bullet wounds in the woman's neck and head. The man had a bullet wound in the temple. A bullet hole was found in the roof of the cab. A .32-calibre pistol also was found.

Inside the waistband of the man's trousers, police said, was a commando-type knife with a seven-inch blade.

Rushmore's testimony was featured during the Hollywood criminal libel trial of Confidential last year. He said he joined the magazine in 1953 to expose Communism but was assigned to do stories mostly involving the private lives of movie stars.

Rushmore had worked for the New York Journal American for 15 years as an anti-Red writer until he was fired in 1954 for economy reasons. Rushmore said he was discharged partly because he criticized Roy Cohn, then an aide to the late Senator Joseph McCarthy.

McCarthy had praised Rushmore as "one of the most effective enemies of treason in American journalism" and had made him an investigator for his Senate investigating committee while the writer was on leave of absence from the newspaper.

BOY, FATHER HELD IN WOMAN'S DEATH

BAYONNE, N.J. (AP)—Police say Robert Gaydos, 15, has alternately denied, confessed, denied and confessed again that he killed his mother.

The boy and his father both were held today as police tried to unravel the slaying of Mrs. Mary Gaydos, 36. The body of Mrs. Gaydos was found Friday in a park. Her throat was cut.

Guilty Plea in Assault on Police

A young woman who threatened to kill an Oak Bay policeman with a .38 revolver slung around her neck pleaded guilty in Oak Bay police court Friday to assaulting a policeman.

April Gould, 1721 Feltham, was remanded to next Friday for a probation report and sentence.

Const. Richard Lopeter testified he had been called to a home on Orchard Avenue Dec. 19 at 3.15 a.m. to quiet Mrs. Gould who was trying to wake the occupants.

"She had a revolver under her overcoat hanging on a lanyard . . . I demanded it . . . there was a struggle . . . and she stated 'I'll kill you' the constable said.

In the ensuing struggle, Mrs. Gould slapped and kicked him, he said, and was in a hysterical state.

A jail term is customarily handed out for such an offence, Magistrate H. C. Hall said. "The Court of Appeal has laid great emphasis as to the seriousness of the offence which the accused has pleaded guilty to."

Handy Forms Distributed To Jobless

Handy forms outlining requirements for unemployment insurance now are being distributed to all claimants with their record books. Unemployment Insurance Commission officials said today.

The UIC points out that the claimant must have made sufficient contributions to qualify, have become unemployed through no fault of his own, be looking for and unable to find suitable work, and be able to accept immediate suitable employment.

REPORT WEEKLY

Disqualification is imposed when a claimant fails to fulfill these conditions.

Claimants are warned further that all earnings received or to be received for services given or work performed must be reported for each week in which they were actually earned, regardless of when paid.

Severe penalties are imposed for false statement, the UIC warns.

Hard Work Her Motto, Dies in 109th Year

RESERVE MINES, N.S. (CP)—Mrs. Annie Martin, at 109 one of the oldest women in Canada, died Thursday.

She believed in hard work, she often said, and spent most of her time knitting and sewing. She watched her diet and was never known to use gravy, butter or fatty foods.

Mrs. Martin smoked a pipe and accepted an occasional cigarette. But she said "cigarettes aren't as good as a pipe."

Two years ago on her 107th birthday she danced a Scottish square dance with a group of young people.

More Conventions Needed Here, Sertoma Club Told

Victoria Chamber of Commerce has only 700 members, but the results of its work are enjoyed by some 4,000 business within the city limits, Chamber manager Arnold Webb told the newly-formed Sertoma Club at a dinner meeting Thursday night.

Mr. Webb called for more support from local businessmen and stressed the need for attracting more conventions to Victoria.

He urged members of the Sertoma Club to campaign within their own business organizations to bring conventions here.

"We have to face up to the fact that many of the tourists we used to get from the prairies during the winter months are now able to fly to warmer places such as California, Hawaii and Florida.

"One of our greatest hopes for the future is to attract more visitors through conventions."

Mr. Webb said Victoria must have both tourists and industry to achieve a well-balanced economy. He believed Victoria and vicinity had an industrial future, but they could not rely on industry alone.

Mayor Ready to Name Store Sale Holdouts

Block Purchase of Land For Woodward's Building

Mayor Percy Scurrell today said "if necessary" he will name the three or four property owners blocking a $7,000,000 department store and new city hall for Victoria by holding out for high land prices.

He made the statement as events pointed to cancellation of Woodward Stores Ltd. proposal if negotiations were not concluded by Friday. The firm proposes to buy almost all the city and privately-owned property between Pandora, Fisgard, Douglas and Government Streets.

NEAR COLLAPSE

The mayor said the deal, under negotiation for more than six weeks, now is "just on the ragged edge of collapse because of the attitude of three or four property-holders."

"This is just a message to those concerned," he added, "but, if necessary, I will name names in a few days."

Under the deal, Woodward's would build a huge three-story department store on the site with parking space for at least 300 cars. Victoria would sell its city hall and build a new one.

Confirmation that negotiations are stalled and "teetering on the verge of collapse," came from Russell Ker, real estate agent handling negotiations for the company, and Courtney Haddock, Victoria manager.

POSSIBLE TRAGEDY

"Collapse" of negotiations would be a tragedy for the city since it would lose a $7,000,000 investment just because a few greedy people are trying to hold us up."

Mr. Haddock said the project was nearer the $7,000,000 figure than previous estimates of $5,000,000.

He said there was only a week left for negotiating because the Woodward's president was due to leave for Europe Jan. 10.

"If we don't meet that time

element then, the Victoria development will be set back about six years because the company has to decide whether to build in Calgary or Victoria first.

"If negotiations are not completed here soon then the Calgary store will be built first."

Mr. Haddock said that no further meeting has been scheduled so far by the hold-outs.

"We are offering them premium prices and they will never do as well if we move out of the picture but they still seem to want more money."

"We're leaning over backwards to do our part but after all Woodward's has its pride too."

SAANICH FAVORED

It also was learned by The Times that at least half of the directors of the firm were in favor of building the new store in Saanich where property would be cheaper and staff easier to hire.

Mr. Haddock said it would be "unfortunate" if the Victoria site fell through because all merchants, including the hold-outs, would suffer by the competition of a Woodward's store located outside the city.

A third possible recourse is re-building on its own land which faces Pandora, Blanshard and Cormorant. But this, because of its smaller size would rule out as large a store as proposed for the city hall site.

Ald. Austin Curtis, chairman of the finance committee who revealed the proposal to council Nov. 19 said at the time that loss of the project would be "a crime" that Victorians would never forgive if the new development went outside the city.

"Memloose Chickman?"

NOT 'BAD MEDICINE'

Centennial Coin Totem Defended

Implications of "bad medicine" in the totemic design of B.C.'s centennial silver dollar were flatly denied here today by Wilson Duff, provincial anthropologist and leading student of native art.

The tempest in a tepee started in Vancouver Friday when Guy Williams, of the Native Brotherhood of B.C., claimed the totem depicted on the coin is the mortuary pole of the Tsimpsian tribe.

Mr. Williams says the dollar, a special minting, issued on Jan. 1 to commemorate the centenary, may be taboo to West Coast Indians because it "carries death."

He has dubbed the coin "memloose chickman" — death money.

Mr. Duff denies that the design is from a mortuary pole. He is certain the artist, Stephen Trenka, based it on a Haida tribe house pole which stands in the entrance hall to the Provincial Museum here.

BOOK CHECKED

To back his contention, Mr. Duff referred to a book on Primitive Art by Franz Boas, a standard work on native art. On page 209 is a drawing of the museum's Haida pole, and the coin design closely follows the top portion of this sketch.

An official guide to the museum's anthropological collection, published in 1909, describes the totem thusly:

"This pole formerly stood at the back of the house so large that people must shout to make themselves heard in it. This belonged to Chief Neelakana, of the 'Great House' division of the Eagles of Skidegate, Queen Charlotte Islands, and shows two of his crests."

"The upper figure is the raven with its beak broken and bent down, as told in one of the stories of its adventures, and below is a whale."

Backing up Mr. Williams' "death" claim is Mrs. Ellen Neel of Vancouver, an expert on the carver's art. Mrs. Neel agrees the symbol actually has a burial connotation.

"The design is terribly unfortunate for the B.C. Celebrations," she said. In the opinion of Allan Kleinman, president of the Victoria Numismatic Society and a director of the Canadian Numismatic Association, the coin "has accomplished its purpose in excellent fashion."

He pointed out the design was a "stylized" reproduction of the Haida pole and "might include something which could be interpreted as a death motif." "But," he said, "whether or not the design has such implications, it represents the Indian art of B.C., and as such will be cherished by collectors everywhere."

Said L. J. Wallace, chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee: "The proposed design was widely publicized last year and no person objected."

"In any event, whether its a mortuary design or not, I don't think it will sound the death knell for the centenary."

THREE-STOREY HOME NEVER FINISHED INSIDE

'Haunted' House by Seashore for Sale

Victoria's "haunted house" is for sale.

One of the city's best-known landmarks, the big, square unpainted house is situated at the tip of Harling or Chinese Point, below Gonzales.

It was built in the early years of the century by James Sterling Smith, member of a local pioneer family.

The house has been occupied all the time and no one is quite sure how it got the "haunted" tag.

One reason might be its forbidding appearance; another that it is adjoining the Chinese cemetery.

The solidly-built, three-storey home was never finished inside.

Graceful chandeliers and an elegant staircase are testimony, however, to the owner's ambitious plans.

A ballroom taking up the complete west side of the main floor is one of the impressive features.

Upstairs there is a billiard room, and during the First World War the house was a mecca for young people of the neighborhood.

MONT ROBERTS

I have just had a chat with Old Man Juan, and I regret very much to report, Old Man Juan is lonely.

In case you are a newcomer to these parts, and do not know Old Man Juan as well as the loyal constituents and I do, it is only fair to tell you his more formal name is Juan de Fuca Strait.

But anyone who knows him calls him Old Man Juan, because he is a very old man indeed, and subject to the crotchety moods and sudden furies of the aged.

Well, even before I spoke to Old Man Juan, I could tell he was in a sombre mood. As I strolled down the new boat launching ramp at Clover Point, toward the cluster of boom logs seeking refuge on the beach, I noted his dull grey appearance.

He was breathing sullenly, raising a roller up, letting it sink down, raising it up again.

The Old Man was, in short, in a deceptive mood, the type which might be interpreted as tranquil by the uninitiated, for there were no spectacular whitecaps or cross-chops to show his power.

He was just lying there, breathing in and out, ready to pay his disrespects to any small craft unwary enough to believe Old Man Juan was really a calm fellow after all.

When I got down to the beach, I tossed a pebble at Old Man Juan, to attract his attention.

Hi, I said to Old Man Juan, long time no see.

"Long time no see," said Old Man Juan, rolling a softly-breaking wavelet over my shoe tops, "Is putting it mildly."

I'm sorry, I said, but I've been busy.

"So," said Old Man Juan, "have all of my alleged friends."

You sound unhappy, I said.

"I am NOT unhappy," Old Man Juan gurgled as he whipped a deadhead onto shore, narrowly missing my shinbone. "I am just lonely."

Tsk, tsd, I tsd-tsd.

"Where," asked Old Man Juan, dramatically, "are my friends of yesteryear? The friends for whom I have done so much?"

As for instance? I asked.

"As for instance Bert Thomas. Who ever heard of Bert Thomas before he and I became friends. But where is Bert Thomas now? Did he send me a Christmas present, even a Christmas card?"

I don't suppose so, I supposed.

"And my friend Cliff Lumsdon," said Old Man Juan, ignoring me. "And my little sweetheart, Marilyn. And Amy. And Ben. And Bill Muir. And John Geise. And Flo, who started it all. And all the others. Where are they now?"

I heard a distinct sob as Old Man Juan dumped a salty tear in my lap.

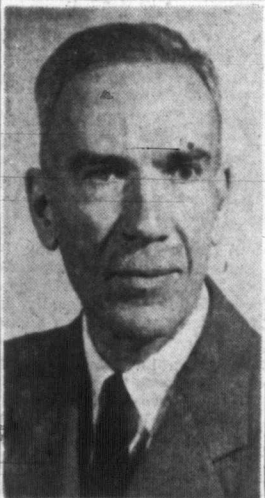

Friendship, I said, is a sometime thing.

"Never mind your soft words," said Old Man Juan de Fuca. "I am a lonely old man. Nobody keeps me company any more."

Cheer up, I said, there is always the garbage scow.

And suddenly a sullen, slow roller broke into a whitecap and flung a grapefruit rind at me.

So I left the Old Man to his loneliness.

TO SPEAK HERE—Prof. Albert Cooke, professor of history at the University of British Columbia, will give a public lecture on the new British Dominion of Ghana at a meeting of the University Extension Association of Victoria in Victoria College Auditorium Monday at 8.15 p.m.

B.C. Liberals Preparing For Big Parley

They are George Gregory, MLA for Victoria, Forrest L. Shaw, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, Senator Nancy Hodges, Dr. F. T. Fairley, former Liberal MP for Victoria; Arthur Cox, secretary of Victoria Liberal Association; Mrs. J. Nelson, J. McLellan, and Mrs. J. T. Jones.

The convention has been called by Senator Sydney Smith, president of the B.C. Liberal Association.

The executive committee of Oak Bay Liberal Association will meet next Tuesday to elect delegates to attend the convention.

The meeting will be held in the Tingo Room, 2186 Oak Bay Avenue, at 8 p.m.

"Proposals for carrying on our association work during the balance of the winter will also be considered," J. M. Gorst, secretary of the Oak Bay Liberal Association said.

Forestry Issues to Dominate 'Sawdust and Chips' Session

By PETER MURRAY

The second session of B.C.'s 25th legislative assembly, due to open in less than three weeks, is expected to be a "sawdust and chips" session.

Forestry will be the dominant theme as the MLAs gather Jan. 23 for the official opening.

Some legislation will be introduced by the government based on recommendations in the royal commission report of Chief Justice Gordon Sloan.

The report itself, released in September, will spark debate and members will also discuss the recent, 10-year appointment of Mr. Sloan as government forests adviser.

Other main topics of the session, expected to last the usual six or seven weeks, will be these:

STORES CLOSING—The government is expected to shift responsibility for regulation of corner stores' operations to the municipalities.

This action was demanded at the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention in Nelson, and the Social Credit convention in October passed a resolution urging the government to repeal that section of the Municipal Act.

Revision of the Municipal Act will take up some of the legislators' time. It was passed in a hurry at the last session and many faults have been found.

VICTORIA CITY CHARTER—A private bill submitted by Social Credit MLA and former alderman J. Donald Smith seeking approval for a city charter is expected to be rejected.

The Victoria council wants a charter similar to that under which the city of Vancouver operates, but the government fears that other cities in the province may ask similar privileges if it is granted.

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY—A special legislative committee will make a study of the juvenile delinquency problem in B.C. and decide whether a royal commission inquiry is warranted.

This action was decided by Attorney-General Bonner after he had looked at the British system of delinquency control during his European trip.

SUNDAY SPORT—Vancouver finally seems assured of being granted the right to follow commercial sport on Sunday afternoons.

Residents approved Sunday sport by an overwhelming majority in another plebiscite last

FIRST WEEKEND OF 1958 BRINGS WARMTH, CLOUDS

The year's first weekend will be warm—for this season—and mostly cloudy.

But there will be partial breaks in the clouds with sun streaming through. Scattered showers are expected, but nothing of a constant nature.

Temperatures expected are slightly above normal, averaging 42 degrees tonight and in the 50s Sunday.

"It will be a pleasant Sabbath for this time of year," said Mr. Mackie.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

The two-week Christmas vacation ends Monday for more than 19,000 Greater Victoria school children who will troop back to school.

Next vacation period will be Easter.

Members of the "Spinning Stars" Club and others will attend a teenage square dance at Woodsworth Hall, 721 Courtney Street, tonight.

Class for beginners will be held from 7 to 8 p.m., and regular dance will follow until 11. Gerry Dunn will be caller for both sessions.

The first meeting of the 47th council of Esquimalt will be held Monday at 7.30 p.m. at the Municipal Hall.

Victoria Labor Council will continue its campaign to raise $10,000 for a low-rent senior citizens' housing project until Jan. 29.

The previous Jan. 1 deadline was extended to give union locals time to collect pledges from members.

The fund totals $6,710 at present. The money will be turned over to the Senior Citizens' Housing Society Jan. 29.

The Gyro Club of Victoria will meet at the Empress Hotel Monday noon.

Speaker will be R. H. Kendall of the department of forestry air survey division on "Unusual War Experiences."

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—What's the value of the present Canadian dollar in purchasing power as compared with 1936?—M.E. and L.W.P.

A.—Government statistical tables indicate that for what you bought for $1 in 1936 you now need $2.82.

The present Dominion Bureau of Statistics index of 123.3 (as of November) is based on the 1949 level as being 100, or the starting norm.

However, it was estimated the dollar in November, 1949, would only purchase what 61 cents would do in 1936.

Thus it works out that to achieve the same benefit from a 1936 salary of $49.55 you must now earn $100.

Son and daughter of Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow received minor injuries in a traffic accident at Trans-Canada Highway and Burnside Friday afternoon.

Peter I. Edgelow suffered a blow to his head when a car which he was driving was in collision with another being driven by Brian Alexander Pope, 3738 Tillicum.

Elizabeth Edgelow, 10, was treated for an injured finger and nose.

The 40th Technical Squadron, RCEME (Militia) will hold its first parade of the new year Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Bay Street Armoury.

James Bertram Connor, 1407 Fort, was fined $250 in city court today and his licence was suspended when he pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving.

Court was told the accused had turned from Broughton south on Douglas and collided with a car stopped at a stoplight, then turned on to Chancery Lane and hit the wall of Victoria Courthouse.

A doctor pronounced him impaired.

Dame Flora Tells Her Clansmen Of Dunvegan's Fairy Flag Legend

In the lounge at Oak Bay Beach Hotel, Friday evening, a chief sat with her clansmen and told them a legend that goes back in time more than 400 years.

It was the story of the fairy flag of Dunvegan, that protects and brings good luck to Clan MacLeod. The narrator was the chief of the clan, Dame Flora MacLeod.

Standing quietly by the piano in the attractive hotel lounge, with head held high and eyes sparkling, Dame Flora told the ancient tale in its several versions, with a quiet sincerity that held the attention of everyone in the room.

At its conclusion, Ronnie Chisholm, wearing a MacLeod tartan kilt, played "The Road to the Isles" on the accordion. The chief kept time to the tune with tapping toe and quick movements of her hands.

The informal gathering in the lounge followed the third annual banquet of the local branch of the clan, held in the main dining room of the hotel.

This banquet, started two years ago when Dame Flora made her first visit to the city (and usually held in February), is arranged to celebrate the birthday of the chief on Feb. 3.

Charles MacLeod, president of the Victoria group, was chairman and seated with him at the head table were Dame Flora, Dr. Hector MacLeod, Mrs. Catherine MacLeod Blinks, Mr. Blinks, Mr. Kenneth MacLeod, Mrs. Edith MacLeod, Miss J. Robertson, Padre and Mrs. Douglas Kendall and Mr. Robin MacLeod.

The head table was decorated with ribbons of the gay and beautiful yellow and red MacLeod tartan, yellow chrysanthemums and green candles in yellow holders. Two birthday cakes iced in yellow and green added a festive touch.

A dinner program included brief remarks by Charles MacLeod and introduction by him of the local executive, Mrs. Blinks, Kenneth MacLeod, Miss Robertson, Mrs. Harold Beckwith, Alex MacLeod Baird and Don MacLeod.

Dame Flora addressed the gathering. She told a little of her present travels first to New Zealand and Australia then Los Angeles and San Francisco, Portland, Seattle and then Victoria.

She reminded her listeners that the word "clan" means "children."

"If that is so then we are all children of one name and so we are kinsfolk," she said quietly.

In conclusion she repeated the clan slogan—"Hold Fast!"

"As I will do to you and you, I hope, will do to Dunvegan."

Master Ian Baird presented a cheque for $50 to the Chief from the ladies' committee of the local branch, "to be used as she wished." The Chief immediately returned it to the treasurer, "for work of the clan in Victoria."

Arrangements for the banquet were in charge of Mrs. Blinks and Miss Robertson. Table decorations were arranged by Mrs. Ella Ritchie. Piper Bill Mossie led the gathering to the dining room.

Dame Flora concluded a week's visit in Victoria this morning when she left Patricia Bay by air for Winnipeg, en route to her home in Scotland.

Wedding Vows At Coleman

Of interest to Victorians is the recent wedding in Coleman, Alta., between Frances Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Graham of Coleman, and Duncan Frederic, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tolson of Victoria Avenue in this city.

The young couple were united in marriage by Rev. F. Dykes in St. Alban's Anglican Church.

A gown of ivory brocade was worn by the dark-haired bride as she walked up the aisle on her father's arm. Her princess line dress was styled in a ballerina length, with fitted bodice featuring a sweetheart neckline and lily point sleeves.

An illusion net fingertip veil misted from a tiny pillbox of lace sewn with seed pearls. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls belonging to her mother. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

A gown of ruby red velvet was worn by maid of honor Miss Mary Ann Rutherford. Styled on princess lines, the dress featured three-quarter length sleeves and a deep scoop neckline.

The bride's brother, John Graham, was best man and ushering was George Dibble.

During the signing of the register, Miss Frances Dibble sang "The Wedding Prayer" accompanied by Mrs. S. Denney at the organ.

Turtle Mountain Playground hall was the scene of a reception following the ceremony. A three-tiered cake topped with a goblet filled with white roses centred the bridal table. Arthur Graham, the bride's uncle, proposed a toast.

A rose wool sheath dress was worn by the new Mrs. Tolson for her wedding trip to Harrison Hot Springs. She topped the ensemble with a black seakins coat. Her fur hat and accessories were winter white and her purse and hat were black.

FORETELLS WEDDING IN FEBRUARY

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Speck, 629 Mount Joy Avenue, wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Susan Patricia, to Mr. Glen Harold Beauchamp, younger son of Mrs. J. A. Beauchamp, Vancouver, B.C. The wedding will take place quietly on Feb. 1, in St. Mary's Anglican Church, Oak Bay, at 8 p.m. with Rev. H. J. Jones officiating. Bridesmaid will be Miss Patricia Brown and the best man, Mr. Edward Hall, Vancouver.

Couple Wed in Vancouver Church Planning Year's Visit to Europe

A year's honeymoon in Europe is ahead for newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Cornel N. Popa, who were married recently, in the Greek Orthodox Church, Vancouver.

Heavy white satin created an exquisite wedding gown for the bride, Eunice Eleanor, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Woodward, Cordova Bay, when she took her vows with the son of Mr. Popa and the late Mrs. Popa, Bucharest, Roumania.

Bodice of the bridal gown was embroidered and styled with scoop neckline and lily-pointed sleeves. The full skirt swept into a train.

RED TAFFETA

Matron of honor, sister of the bride, Mrs. Harold Leeson, Portland, Ore., wore a full-length gown of red taffeta with white taffeta inset trimmed with pearls on the bodice. Her bolero and gloves matched her gown.

Bridesmaid, Miss Jean McMullen, Vancouver, wore a copper-toned taffeta gown styled on princess lines with matching bolero. Both carried colonial bouquets of red and white carnations, chrysanthemums, fern and silvered holly and wore silvered holly hair bandeaux.

Little flower girls, Miss Janis Leeson and Miss Trudy Leeson, neices of the bride, wore short, princess dresses of red taffeta with white and gold bodices with white and red bodies. They carried bouquets of red and white carnations and silvered holly with white streamers. Both wore silvered holly hairbands.

Best man was Eugene Stefanescu, Vancouver, and ushers were Don Callen, Victoria, and R. Bombaru, Vancouver. Rev. Gavallas conducted the double-ring ceremony.

The reception was held at Fraser Hallmark Hall, Vancouver, where guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a navy fallie gown with white accessories and mauve corsage.

For traveling on a honeymoon to San Francisco, before leaving with her husband for Europe in February for a year, the bride wore a black ripple wool suit with winter white hat and black accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid.

Mr. Popa is a 1956 graduate of the University of British Columbia in forestry and Mrs. Popa is a 1957 graduate of the university in arts.

Change From Rich Fabrics To New Spring Cottons

By Nona Damaske, Times Fashion Editor

Crisp, fresh, spanking new cotton dresses seem like a good topic for the New Year. The silks and satins have worn a bit thin (no pun intended) after all the holiday festivities and everyone seems happy to contemplate a somewhat less hectic January.

It will be a few months yet before we will be wearing cottons in town so Bill Halkett took today's pictures with a smart at home background.

The clean lines of the contemporary-designed furniture by Tomlinson make a perfect backdrop for our first dresses of the New Year.

At home cottons are an integral part of every woman's wardrobe and the new Kay Windsor collection is the first to show its fresh, new face here.

There are chemise dresses with optional belts, two-piece dresses with middy-style overblouses and classic sheaths and shirtwaists.

The fabrics are many and varied . . . Viscose, challis, linen-like Sereda, Lomella, cotton and Cupioni, Arnel and cotton, pongee and ribbed Dacron and cotton are used extensively. It's a joy to care for these crease-resistant and hand washable fabrics.

Apricot, oyster, beige, red, yellow and navy are strong colors in this line of dresses and there are stripes, florals, dots and plain fabrics from which to choose.

These breath of spring fashions have all the style, color and fabric features that any gal could want and for less than $17 a dress.

You don't have to break the bank to have a crisp, new cotton for 1958.

SHOPPING GUIDE

You Know . . . It's Spring! I Mean in Fabric Shops

By PENNY SAVER

It's spring! That is, as far as materials are concerned. When I stopped in a local yardage goods shop today, I noticed that materials are light and colorful in texture and colors are there for the coming spring. (Seems a good subject to dwell on during these days of January when we only have a promise of spring). Saucy French prints, flower-fresh glazed cottons and many tones of cotton corduroy caught my eye. They made me think again and again of warmer weather.

I'm going to have the weatherman after me if I don't stop dreaming!

If you're a keen seamstress with little activity to fill these long winter days—or evenings, why not start planning your spring and summer wardrobe right now? I can tell you you'll never find better bargains in materials!

Take the dotted nylon organdy I found, for instance. It's a versatile fabric that can be made up in to afternoon dresses, evening gowns or little girl's frocks. There are many shades to choose from including such flower-like colors as rose, yellow and blue. A yard costs . . . well you won't believe it . . . $1.29!

I'm crazy 'bout the new materials, too. It would be wonderful to wash a blouse or dress made of the latest drip-dry material and have it dry again in little less than two hours! You can't beat the economy and convenience of this material. Think! At 99 cents a yard, you can probably make yourself a dress for under $3. Seems unbelievable doesn't it?

Looking at my shiny new 1958 calendar I see that Easter is not too far away . . . April 6 to be exact!

With the all-wool tweed I saw today, you might like to start working on your Easter outfit. The tweed is going at $2.77 a yard.

Get busy! Make it a new year and a new outfit with material.

Speed Job Removing Decorations

When you sound the call for volunteers to help untrim the house of gay holiday decorations, do you look in vain for a willing crew? Probably.

After a few years of home-making, the realistic wife and mother makes the request for the record, but organizes the job so that she can handle it with minimum assistance.

Untrimming the tree is the first undertaking. A few simple props are helpful.

An old sheet or tarpaulin, sturdy pieces of cardboard, facial tissues and newspapers right at hand speed the work.

If the boxes in which ornaments and lights are stored are broken or damaged, get stonger replacements before you shelve the trim for another year.

Wind strings of lights around pieces of cardboard to avoid a tangle and possible damage to the wires. Soft facial tissues are just about the right size to wrap around fragile ornaments and it's timesaving to use tissues rather than to tear up sheets of newspapers for the purpose. Use crumpled newspapers, however, to cushion layers of ornaments in boxes and protect the fancy centrepieces or mantel arrangements.

The brightly colored folding foil ornaments, large and small, can be unfolded and packed flat. When tree has been stripped, lay it carefully on the old sheet and haul it to the door, thereby avoiding a shower of dried needles. When evergreen wreaths are taken down, wrap in newspaper to protect the carpet from falling needles before taking wreaths outside.

Windows and mirrors that have been up with push-button snow, soap, decals and tapes may yield to damp-cloth cleaning, but probably won't.

Not if the youthful artists really laid it on in solid layers. You'll likely need a brush, hot water and a regular cleaning solution.

One effective substance you may have on hand is sal soda concentrate.

This is alkaline and cuts the greasy residue left by some decorating materials.

If the decorations are thick, one of the recommended ways to dissolve them is to dip a brush or sponge in hot water, then in dry sal soda, and scrub.

When most of the material has been scrubbed off, rinse the area with a solution of one tablespoon of sal soda per gallon of hot water, then rinse again with fresh water and dry.

You may not need this reminder, but it's always best to wear protective, plastic or rubber gloves when you're working with heavy-duty cleaning solutions.

One outgoing spirit, a person without pretense, is always most appealing to others. There is so much subterfuge and posing that when we meet someone who approaches life with candor and simplicity and friendliness, it is like a breath of spring.

Here is another old thought for the new year: "We are never so ridiculous from the habits we have as from those we affect to have."—La Rochefoucauld.

This is so true. Our affectations make us look ridiculous. They ride awkwardly on the shoulders of our personalities. They do not belong to the picture, and others always know it. How much wiser and more charming to rely on the real qualities we have to offer.

You do not have to be rich. You do not have to be socially prominent. You do not have to be famous or even well known. You do not have to be sought after. You do not have to be talented. You do not have to be smart or intellectual. You do not have to be popular. You do not have to be any of these things in order to make a success of your life if you will just be yourself and bring sincerity to daily living.

Here is another quotation along the same line. "Affectation hides three times as many virtues as charity does sin."—Horace Mann.

Those who are struggling and perhaps cannot dress as well as they would like, or who do not have the money for many of the luxuries, or who have not had the educational opportunities of others, may be tricked into self-consciousness which causes them to pose, thus hiding qualities which would have been appreciated. Warmth, naturalness, friendliness, are prized in any society, anywhere. If they aren't, that society is not worth any effort and it is certainly not worth the loss of your individuality and personal integrity.

With the cost of living what it is today, and constantly soaring, $25 in Canadian terms may seem just a "drop in the bucket." But in Korea, where the standard of living is still so low, it can work miracles. With her "drop in the bucket" donation to the Unitarian Service Committee, a Winnipeg woman is providing enough whole milk to feed 25 Korean malnourished babies for a complete month. The USC, 78 Sparks Street, Ottawa, can stretch even one Canadian dollar a long way in Asia.

Margaret's Clothes Sense Criticized by Columnists

LONDON (AP)—Dropped from the list of the world's dozen best-dressed women, Princess Margaret has been taken to task in a London paper for not even trying to dress smartly.

"For shame," writes June Hulbert, Daily Herald columnist. "You can do better than this."

She even hints that the pretty princess has been wearing her mother's clothes.

The Labor paper publishes a picture of the Queen's sister at a ballet performance Thursday night, and then proceeds to tear her outfit to shreds.

"This picture might have been taken five or even 10 years ago."

"Margaret looks as if she's going to a little boy's birthday party and—as little girls do—forgotten her gloves."

"Look at that jacket. Could it be—surely not—a cut-down from one of her mother's. If so, Margaret needs a better cutter. The sleeves are much too short."

"Look at that swirly pattern on the two-full skirt. Look at that bit of shiny nonsense pinned in her hair."

The shiny nonsense was a pair of diamond brooches shaped like butterflies.

Other papers express surprise that the princess was dropped from the top 12, chosen by the New York Dress Institute poll.

LATE MOVE

MORRISBURG, Ont. (CP)—At 91, Miss I. K. Farlinger is resigned to moving her home.

The three-story frame house in which she was born, built by her grandfather in 1834, is being torn down as part of St. Lawrence Seaway work. She will live in a new bungalow.

FROM AGE OF TWO

Mrs. A. Carlaw is principal of the school, located in north-central Toronto. Children are taken from the age of two.

Programs include a number of routine activities such as nurses' inspection, a mid-morning milk break, dinner, nap, indoor and outdoor play.

"Our youngsters romp around the outdoors, riding the merry-go-round, sliding, building sand castles while others may take a turn at climbing the 'jungle jim' bar," said Mrs. Dempsey.

"Indoor activities include ballet lessons for the girls while the little boys are kept busy with construction sets and playing with trucks."

Even the two-year-olds take part in the ballet lessons, she added. They wear soft ballet shoes and sing nursery rhymes with their movements. The older children are also taught some bar work.

Tots are first taught to make paper cut-outs, paste and color. They are also shown one-finger painting and by the time they reach four they can work with the whole hand.

Music time is a big event each day and all youngsters love to take part. Actions songs are stressed and children are taught dancing movements to accompany the songs.

Also a daily event is the afternoon nap. The routine is usually so planned to encourage sleep. A child is taught to lie still and be quiet in the sleeping room and usually he ends up by having a nap, Mrs. Dempsey said.

Mrs. Dempsey urges parents to bring their children to nursery school for a few visits prior to the first day. She also suggests during the first week that parents call for the children early. This makes a child realize that school is not taking him away from his mother and his home.

If children get the "second week blues" pay no attention, she said. This often occurs even after a happy first week at nursery school when children suddenly decide they've had enough. They are soon diverted

BOOK TALK

By JAMES SCOTT

Nobel Literature Prize
Canadian Dream for '58

Time once again to raise a glass and utter a hearty good wish for the incoming year to a group of friends, acquaintances and other excellent fellows in the literary world who, in '57, shouldered their share of bookdom's burdens.

So a Happy New Year to:

Lester Bowles Pearson (who is also a writer of some considerable distinction with a couple of published books to his credit) for bringing a Nobel Prize to Canada, and this we send along with the pious hope that not only will the world stay at peace so authors can write their books, but that one of them will finally bring a Nobel Prize for Literature to Canada too.

And at the same time, to Vladimir Dudintsev, the behind the Iron Curtain author of Not by Bread Alone, which, was a brave attempt (under the circumstances) to assert the writer's freedom to criticize. In the dying days of the year he was forced to recant. Maybe in '58 the day will come when a writer—even in Russia—will have a chance to write what he likes.

To Nat Cohen, the longtime M.C. of the CBC's most literate TV panel. Starting the first Sunday in January the show goes into its sixth year—the oldest TV panel show in Canada—and since I was a guest on the first broadcast five years ago, I'll be back on it with Nat on the anniversary occasion.

To Caitlin Thomas, whose book this year, Leftover Life to Live, depicted a truly horrible year (after Dylan's death) with the fervent wish that whatever comes in '58 will be easier and happier.

HISTORY TOPS

To sprightly Canadian historians of the year: G. Elmore Ream for the best local history, Trail of the Black Walnut; Marjorie Wilkins Campbell for the best description of an important phase in the opening of Canada in The Northwest Company; and Bruce Hutchison for the best current history and the most hopeful appraisal of our native land in Canada: Tomorrow's Giant.

To Edwin O'Connor for Benji, the most horribly beguiling fairy tale I have ever read.

To Claude Bissell as he takes on the presidency of Canada's largest university with every tinguished himself as one of the most clear-thinking critics of Canadian fiction in our time.

To the publishers of Tamarack Review on the successful termination of their first year of printing the only full-scale "little" magazine in Canada. May they grow bolder, more venturesome and more confident in '58.

To Brian Moore who said tolerantly "If Jim Scott doesn't like my book he has a right to say so" after I turned out to be just about the only reviewer in North America to object to his latest, The Feast of Lupercal. And if it's any help, Brian, I thought your short story in the hundredth anniversary edition of the Atlantic Monthly was a real honey.

And to Brooke Claxton, another Canadian who took on a new and big job in '57. May the Canada Council, now off to a firm start, really get cracking and help us along to that Nobel Prize for Literature. I won't settle for anything less.

To Mark Harris for the funniest book about baseball ever printed—Ticket for a Seamsitch—and to Compton Mackenzie who is as funny as ever in Rockets Galore. A real good laugh in '57 deserves the highest accolade.

So likewise to Constance Bennett who brought Auntie Name to Canadian theatre-goers.

And to all of you, too, a Happy New Year and more and bigger laughs in '58.

STAMP

By REG NAIRNE

In the last issue of this column the probability of the Post Office Department dropping plate numbers from all future printings of Canadian stamps was mentioned. After the article was written, official word from Ottawa was received which confirmed this.

The announcement has caused considerable consternation among the thousands of plate-block collectors, both in this country and in the U.S.A. What will be the effect on this most popular branch of the hobby, one wonders? There are, of course, thousands of plate-blocks already in existence—enough to keep any collector hunting for the rest of his life. But most of them are already in the hands of collectors or dealers and the majority are priced too high to be easily available to the average enthusiast.

Also, there will no longer be the chance of picking up something rare at the post office at face value, which made the hunting of these sheet-corners such an exciting pastime.

Philatelists who have already acquired worthwhile plate-block collections will no doubt retain their interest, but there is not the same likelihood that newcomers will be attracted to the field, and this will have its effect in the long run.

The Post Office Department states that the discontinuance of plate numbers is due to a change in the method of printing, but as suggested before in this column, the authorities are probably glad of the chance to save the bother and loss of time caused by catering to collectors, in spite of the fact that the sale of such blocks was all profit as far as the Post Office was concerned.

Continues Struggle

THE FACE OF JUSTICE, by Caryl Chessman. Prentice-Hall Inc., New York. 271 pages. $3.95.

(Reviewed by Tom Merriman)

Third of a remarkable series of books written by a man who has been under sentence of death for nine years, The Face of Justice is an amazing document completing the trilogy of Death Row and Trial By Ordeal by the same author.

It is another plea for life made through a manuscript smuggled out of San Quentin prison by the author who has been as close as 24 hours to being led to the gas chamber.

How it was smuggled out has not yet been disclosed.

Proceeds of his other two books have been in the neighborhood of $25,000 each. They have helped Chessman to tell in breath-taking and exciting detail, the life and death drama of the courtroom battles in which he has been involved since he was sentenced to die.

His literary profits have made it possible for him to meet the legal costs of years of battling for his life.

REVILED

Some California writers and organizations continue to sing a hymn of hate about Chessman. Racist, sadist, ruthless killer and brutal kidnapper are among the epithets thrown at the man who newspapers dubbed the "redlight murderer." He is making a mockery of justice, they say.

Chessman, while admitting an early life of crime, claims to be innocent of the charges for which he has been sentenced to death.

In the meantime his battle for life has caused him to develop legal skill that has astounded judges and lawyers, and talents as an author which would assure him success in that field should he gain his freedom.

Total Disaster Came Close
Under Hammer Blows of 1942

THE WAR AT SEA, 1939-45 (Volume II), The Period of Balance. (United Kingdom Military Series.) By Captain S. W. Roskill (Her Majesty's Stationery Office. 539 pages with many charts and graphs.

Reviewed by L. Farrington

The year 1942 has its memories for all those who participated in naval, military or air operations of the Second World War. Yet how many could name offhand all the epoch-making events of that year? A five-ocean war, the dreadful depredations of U-boat and bombers at sea, and the shattering battles on the grainlands of Russia, are sufficient to confuse and even baffle the memory of the most ardent students of Second World War history.

Captain Roskill showed us in the first of the three volumes of "The War at Sea" that he had the eye of a seaman; the second volume of this official history confirms his reputation as an outstanding naval historian who can take his readers—whether they be naval, army or air enthusiasts—through the doldrums of 1942 to the hopeful horizons of 1945.

After the early months of 1942 saw both the British and American Pacific Fleets still staggering from the blows of the Japanese in the Far East. Before the tide turned places like Ceylon, the Solomons, Maldives and Darwin—to name but a few—became more than mere geographical expressions to the Allied cause. Retribution was not far off.

The strategic victory at Coral Sea besides marking a revolutionary change in naval tactics, for not a single surface ship of either side sighted the enemy, was but the prelude to the confirmation of the decisive nature of carrier-borne air weapons in the maritime strategy of the Allies. British carriers had already pointed the way at Taranto, Matapan and in the pursuit of the Bismarck. Now at Midway the Japanese were forced to withdraw because their precious carrier force was destroyed.

Mortifying Escape

Malta convoys, the struggle for Suez and North Africa on land, the German U-boats and bombers wreaking devastation on shipping, the mortifying story of the escape up-Channel of the German battle cruisers and the growing demand for more maritime aircraft (a controversial subject in the post-war period) to increase both the defensive and offensive aspects of the Battle of the Atlantic are a few frank reminders of the many-sided blows and problems which faced maritime strategy in this desperate year.

While it is naturally concerned chiefly with the Royal Navy, it also deals with those phases of the Battle of the Atlantic in which the Royal Canadian Navy gained its most cherished battle honor: For many Canadians the North Atlantic in 1942 was a sacred theatre of operations, where Canadian-escorted convoys fought their grim battle with the enemy and the elements. The volume contains references to famous RCN ships, the names of which have recently been proudly perpetuated in the naming of the RCN's new destroyer escorts, which fought the longest battle of the war in the Atlantic. We read of HMCS Assiniboine ramming and sinking U 210 (a useful map of this particular convoy action is attached) and the night sinking of the Ottawa by torpedo in September, 1942.

New Measures

The final chapters bring the war up to the end of May, 1943, and it is heartening to read of the Canadian contribution to the turning point of the Atlantic battle, which saw the introduction of new anti-submarine measures and the provision of air cover on the convoy routes. By this time the RCN was doing half the convoy work in the North Atlantic, in addition to operations elsewhere, and the new command of Commander-in-Chief North-west Atlantic under Rear-Admiral L. W. Murray, RCN, testified to the ever increasing Canadian escort vessel strength in the Western Atlantic. Supported ably by their RCAF colleagues based at Gander, Sydney, Halifax and Yarmouth, the RCN began with its naval partners to reap the benefits

ART IN REVIEW

By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

No Awards, Many Rewards
From Centenary Project

The B.C. Centennial Year has now arrived and I would like to think that provincial artists will excel themselves in painting at least one picture per head commemorative of the event.

The subjects need not be specifically British Columbian. The style need not be representational. Canvases could be large or small, though perhaps it might be advisable to restrict the larger pictures to 40x30 inches.

Although exhibitions of these paintings might be held throughout the province, I am not suggesting that there should be a competition. There should be no prize money. The works should not be for sale.

They should be given away. They should be presented to orphanages, to the Solarium, to children's wards in hospitals and to all institutions catering for neglected or underprivileged youngsters.

Just one picture per artist, provided it is the best he or she can paint.

Another point—each artist would be personally responsible for delivering the picture, suitably framed, to the hospital or institution of his or her choice.

Williamson

They should also provide hooks and wire for hanging.

Does this seem an idealistic, addle-pated scheme?

Or are you already losing interest because there are no cash prizes and you anticipate out of pocket expense?

Somehow, if you are an artist I don't think either of these apparent drawbacks will trouble you; if they do they will be forgotten in the excitement of creating works worthy of the children who in many cases will be getting their first introduction to real painting. They will learn of the fresh, imaginative world which only artists can show them.

Many Contests

This little scheme of mine, entirely unofficial of course, has been evolved after rereading various art journals for the year 1957, for I have been interested in the number of competitions being held annually throughout the world for the benefit of artists.

Naturally one realizes that while there have always been art competitions, this is a new form of art patronage, particularly in Europe where industry is fast replacing the private patron.

Except for the successful and those with remunerative sidelines, such as regular employment in schools or commercial studios, artists sometimes justifiably consider themselves as underdogs in a forlorn society.

It occurred to me that it would be rather nice if artists could turn the tables, so to speak, and embark on a plan with no set purpose beyond giving pleasure to children.

A competition which isn't a competition, yet something with a creative stimulus of its own.

No Costs

It takes no time at all for entries to a competition to snowball and pass the 5,000 mark. Administrative costs can never be accurately estimated in advance. Expenses spiral in ratio to a competition's popularity. In this scheme there would be no administrative costs.

Man's innate desire to compete at all levels would still be satisfied by the knowledge that other B.C. painters were doing their best. There would be no strings attached, no selection juries and if one wasn't satisfied with the final picture one could hang on to it.

Well, there is a thought. Pictures for children in the hospitals and institutions of British Columbia.

I know that in asking an artist to paint a picture and give it away in such a cause I am entering the realm of art for art's sake, not overlooking the reality that an artist's picture is his capital. Each square foot of canvas represents X number of dollars, even though the capital might never be realized in the artist's lifetime.

A critic should never forget that sometimes his criticism, even when sugar-coated, hurts an artist's pocketbook rather than his ego. Because I am aware of this chilly fact I have no hesitation in asking artists to consider my scheme seriously.

Let's face it. The B.C. Centennial sculpture competition was a premature squib, though I do not dispute the awards.

But if 1958 is to be a year to really celebrate, let the painters do something light-hearted. Let them go one better.

Let them enter every official competition; but let them also do something spontaneous and equally permanent.

Canada Promised Land
For Real Uncle Tom

BLACK MOSES, by Jessie L. Beattie. Ryerson Press, Toronto. 215 pages. $4.50.

It may come as a surprise to some readers to know that the original Uncle Tom of Harriett Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was a slave who escaped to Canada and founded a negro refugee colony at Dawn, Ontario.

His name was Josiah Henson. Henson's story is told by Ontario-born Jessie L. Beattie in her book "Black Moses, the Real Uncle Tom." A reference to three pages of bibliography compiled by the author shows that what may be a surprise to one reader may be common knowledge to another, for Henson, sometimes referred to as Rev. Josiah Henson, has been the subject of several books, including one entitled "Uncle Tom's Story of His Life."

PIONEER
Through the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire the burial ground of Josiah Henson has been preserved as a historic site. At Dawn a monument to the memory of Uncle Tom (Henson) has been erected on the very land which was dedicated by him to a unique experiment in vocational education—a colony for the advancement of learning among colored people.

It was here he became a pioneer in adult education by establishing a settlement where escaped slaves, who had no knowledge of work beyond cotton picking and planting, could live as they learned trades essential in a new country.

Miss Beattie tells a tragic story of the escape of Henson and his family from a U.S. cotton plantation, their trials and suffering on the trail, the hardships they faced to make a home in Canada and Henson's courageous work in helping other slaves to find sanctuary in this country, and make a living when they arrived here—T.M.

Doctor Turned Musician Made Orchestral History

It may have been scarcely noticeable, but I have been absent from these pages for several weeks. I will not indulge in the colossal conceit of apologizing to you for having deprived you of several of my opi, but I apologize just the same—only for burdening you with another today.

A physician turned musician will preside over the next pair of symphony concerts a week from Sunday and Monday—over a trio of concerts, in fact, for on Friday evening, Jan. 10, we shall have, for the third time this season, the special pleasure of playing at the Cowichan auditorium in Duncan.

Mr. Neel—not Dr.—British surgeons affect a preference for the plain Mr., and our guest this week in any case prefers it now in view of his adopted profession—presents an interesting biographical case. He was far from unique, as a medical man, in his predilection for music. An astonishing number of doctors are finished instrumentalists, and the vast majority of them seem to be at least genuine and knowledgeable music lovers. In New York City, no doubt in other places, too, there exists an amateur all-doctor symphony orchestra, but amateur in the financial sense only. It attains a standard many a professional orchestra might do well to emulate. There is a well-known concert-violinist by the name of Paul Doktor, but that is an accident.

Mr. Neel, then, was not alone in his proficiency at music while a practicing physician. But I know of none other who took the plunge and changed profession in midstream. What the world of medicine lost in him I have no way of assessing. What the world of music gained is far clearer to me—and the gain is considerable. He is responsible for the far-famed Boyd Neel Orchestra of London, which, through its recordings, established a worldwide standard for the performance chiefly of baroque music written for string or chamber orchestra; though their programs were by no means con-lined to one style or period of music.

As many modern works—many of them specially commissioned—were in the repertoire of the Boyd Neel Orchestra. Even though its founder himself has now established residence in Canada, as dean of the Royal Conservatory of Music and conductor of the Hart House Orchestra, the Boyd Neel Orchestra continues to be active by that name in England, under the direction of a successor to the founder, and under Mr. Neel himself during the summer months.

I am certain that you will find in the course of next Friday evening, Sunday afternoon and Monday evening some delightful music making. There will be Wagner's masterful Mastersinger Overture, for large orchestra; Schubert's Second Symphony, never before played here, I am ashamed to say. It is written for smaller orchestra—perhaps Mr. Neel can here re-create for half-an-hour another Boyd Neel Orchestra. Halvorsen's Suite Ancienne, about which I have never heard before this, and about which I can therefore tell you nothing having neither read Mr. Steed's program notes yet nor seen a score of it. And, finally, Elgar's "In the South," for very large orchestra indeed. This is another case where my urgent pleas to Mr. Neel for a score were without result—I wonder why, and am dying to find out.

STRATFORD FIRST

Peer Gynt Onion Peeled for TV Debut

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Players, an offshoot of the Stratford Festival Company, Sunday night presented on CBC television Peer Gynt, the four-hour epic of the stage by Henrik Ibsen. The TV show lasted 90 minutes.

(West Coast viewers will see "Peer Gynt" this Sunday night at 9 on Channels 2 and 6.)

It was the group's first show on television and Herbert Whitaker, drama critic of The Globe and Mail, wrote he was pleased with the result. "To peel an out-sized masterpiece like Ibsen's Peer Gynt to the playing time allotted . . . is to reduce its fantastic structure of repetition, cross-references, symbol and dramatic irony. Peer Gynt cannot be a short play."

"Having recognized that, we can admit that what was left of the Peer Gynt onion was surprisingly shapely and clear."

New York: The Theatre Guild has signed Judy Holiday to a new contract which calls for her to continue in the starring role of "Bells Are Ringing" for another year. She is now slated to stay in the hit musical until Oct. 31, 1958. The musical opened last November and has been playing to capacity business ever since.

He commended the leading actors, the direction, settings and lighting as "the best we can recall on CBC."

The production was unusual in that the CBC, which usually sells shows in a package deal to sponsors, accepted a package offer from the sponsor, International Nickel Company.

Direction, production and staging were handled jointly. Producers were Michael Langham for Stratford and Robert Jallen for CBC; directors Douglas Campbell for Stratford and Mario Prizick for CBC; designers Brian Jackson for Stratford and Rudi Dorn for CBC.

Bruno Gerussi played Peer Gynt, Ann Casson was Aase and Diana Maddox was Solveig.

MacArthur Head Firm If a Bit Bare on Top

By RON BURTON

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Nineteen-year-old James MacArthur, whose performance in "The Young Stranger" is making him quite familiar to lots of people, hasn't lost his head yet in Hollywood—just the top of it.

"Pardon the bare noggin," said the youthful son of actress Helen Hayes and the late playwright-journalist, Charles MacArthur. "The first thing they did was shave my head. That's because I play a paleface kid who is raised by Delaware Indians."

MacArthur's reference was to his role in "The Light in the Forest." The reference to "they" was to Disney Studio personnel who concern themselves with things like Indian hairdos. The youth has a starring role in the multi-million dollar Technicolor production.

"I can take a Hollywood job only during the summer," he said. "I go to Harvard and want to finish. I have three years left."

"It was sort of accidental the way 'The Young Stranger' part happened. We did it on television and thought it would make a good picture, but nothing came of it—not for a long time, anyhow. Then all of a sudden John Frankheimer, who directed it on television, was called to direct the picture, and he sent for me."

One of those who saw the picture was Walt Disney, who called MacArthur about the role in "The Light in the Forest."

"I asked, 'What are they going to do—animate me?' when the offer came in," MacArthur recalled. "I was a little startled."

The youth already figures there's no glory in becoming a star who dies broke. He has interests in other fields including outright investments, writing and publishing.

He is associate publisher of "Teen-Age Review," a monthly magazine about teenagers' activities and interests. He feels reasonably secure about receiving returns from this investment, because he occasionally sells it a story himself.

CRITIC'S CORNER: Virginia Gilmore Brynner saw her husband perform in "The Brothers Karamazov." Then she told him something which may startle Brynner fans, particularly those who thought "The King and I" was Brynner's best. "Well, Yul, now you're an actor," she said.

NO FOUL PLAY AS DUNCAN MAN GOES MISSING

DUNCAN (CP)—The possibility of foul play in the disappearance of Bill Carr, 58, of nearby Koksilah, has been discounted, police said here.

They said investigation showed, "it was a planned disappearance — he simply decided to pull out, packed up and left."

Bloodstains found in the missing man's apartment, RCMP said, indicate he may have had a nosebleed.

Carr's disappearance was reported when he failed to turn up for work at a hotel where he was employed as a part-time waiter.

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

1958 Promising COWICHAN LEADER

This district has every reason to feel that 1957 was a good one. It should have little cause to fear 1958. The year we are now entering upon is the centennial year of our province, the year to honor the beginning of joint mainland and V.I. government and the end of separate Crown colonies.

We should realize, one and all, that we have once again been a very favored district. Not many districts in Canada underwent a capital expenditure of $60,000,000 in an 18-month period as we have done. This staggering sum makes up the financial story of both Crofton pulp plant and the Chemainus thermal power station.

Sawmills of Cowichan Lake and Chemainus hummed steadily throughout the year, unhampered by labor troubles or supply problems. The loggers had a good working year. A copper mine is entering production. Business generally has been at a record high level. The area continues to experience considerable general growth. Though oversupply in cement is appearing, Bamberton had a good year.

Canadians are feeling that the worst of their inflationary troubles are at an end. It is to be hoped that this confidence is not misplaced. Inflation has run an expensive course during the postwar years and the measures to stem it can succeed only if every purchaser decides that he can help by trying to live closer to his income.

A New Policy

COMOX DISTRICT FREE PRESS — Whether it is the fact that there is a new government in Ottawa or whether it is that the CBC has become tired of taking criticism without reply, we do not know, but it is a welcome change to see the radio corporation taking a stand in its own defence.

The CBC has gone to great pains to correct an impression given by a magazine's quoting part of a speech by J. A. Omet, the general manager.

We aren't so concerned with the essence of the quotation or the nature of the correction but we are glad to see that a corrective press release has been issued.

Perhaps this indicates a change of attitude on the part of the CBC in its public relations. Certainly it is high time there was a change.

RUNNING in a drizzling rain, Jack Burnett, 21, of Vancouver, covered marathon distance of 26 miles, 385 yards Friday between Nanaimo and Westholme in two hours, 56 minutes. Run was made for training and trial during Christmas holiday on Island. Also on run was Mike May, member of UBC track team with Burnett. (Flett Photo.)

Kinsmen Club's Bottle Drive Set for Jan. 12

CHEMAINUS — The Kinsmen Club will hold its annual bottle drive Jan. 12, club project chairman Bob Wilson said today.

As in previous years, all proceeds from the sale of empty bottles collected during the drive will go to swell the club's B.C. Child Care and Polio Fund campaign now underway.

Soft drink, beer and milk bottles are the most favored empties, and householders are asked to have their bottles ready for the canvasser when he calls. Using the roundhouse as a base of operations Kinsmen will canvass the Chemainus and Crofton areas as well as parts of Westholme and Saltair. Bottles will be sorted and repacked at the roundhouse.

Last year Kinsmen collected 1,365 dozen beer bottles and more than 1,000 dozen empty pop bottles.

12,500 Seeking Work; Situation to Improve

Unemployment on Vancouver Island has reached an estimated 12,500, far above the total of 8,000 persons unemployed at this time last year, but Unemployment Insurance Commission officials expect the situation to ease shortly.

In Victoria the return of temporary Christmas workers to the unemployed ranks sent the number up by 362 to a total of 5,740. This situation will be eased Monday when an estimated 325 men will return to work at plywood mills of Sooke Lake Lumber Co. Ltd. and B.C. Forest Products.

About 1,600 workers in the Duncan-Cowichan area are jobless, according to R. S. Robinson, UIC manager there, but the condition is considered "normal" for this time of year. Logging camps, shut down since Dec. 20, are expected to open Jan. 6 unless heavy snow causes a further delay.

BUILDING TO HELP
With construction work winding up at the B.C. Forest Products pulp mill at Crofton, and B.C. Power Commission thermal plant at Bare Point, near Chemainus, the most hopeful building project is the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation development west of the city, where 160 residential lots will be made available.

of last year. Records show the total was 1,600 one year ago.

Deep-Sea Vessel At Crofton Dock

CROFTON — First deep-sea ship to tie up at the B.C. Forest Products pulp mill dock was the Ss. H. D. Collier, owned by the California Shipping Co. and registered in the port of San Francisco.

It discharged 45,000 barrels of bunker fuel oil for the pulp mill.

On hand to supervise the unloading of the 10,246-ton vessel was Carl Wenguard, assistant marine superintendent for the shipping company.

$4,000 Fire Destroys Garage, Car

An acetylene torch being used to carve the body of a used car spread sparks resulting in $4,000 fire that completely gutted Clarke's Auto Parts and Service, 3233 Douglas, at 9:31 a.m. today.

Saanich deputy fire chief Glen Robbins said flames from the torch apparently exploded a can of gasoline starting a fire that spread through the shop within seconds.

No one was injured. Co-owners Alfred Blanco and Raymond Diggs were present when the fire began and attempted to douse it, "but inside of two seconds the whole building was going," Deputy Robbins said.

"Flames were leaping out the windows and up the side of the walls."

The wrecked car was the only one in the building. It was completely destroyed in the blaze.

LONDON (AP) — Little-known Northampton Town today humbled mighty Arsenal 3-1 and knocked the famous London team out of the Football Association Cup competition in one of the biggest-ever soccer upsets on a day of thrills and giant-killing.

Northampton trained for the big match on sherry, eggs and steak. Immediately after their victory they celebrated the club's proudest day with champagne.

"It was a wonderful, wonderful day," commented Northampton manager Dave Smith, whose team is struggling near the foot of the Third Division on a shoe-string balance sheet.

"Wealthy Arsenal has won the cup three times. Northampton never has been anywhere near success."

West Ham United and Stockport County joined Northampton as the day's giant-killers. West Ham, a Second Division team, routed First Division Blackpool 5-1. Third Division Stockport defeated Luton 3-0.

The only two non-league survivors were knocked out. Sheffield Wednesday won 3-0 at Hereford and Fulham routed Yeovil Town 4-0.

Wolverhampton Wanderers, setting the pace in this season's league championship race, nosed out Lincoln City 1-0.

Hillary Flies Back to Base 'Had Enough of Crevasses'

HILLARY COUP 'CLASSIFIED'

LONDON (UP)—The Times of London, which carries classified ads but never a news story on page one, got so excited today about Sir Edmund Hillary's feat in reaching the South Pole overland that it nearly broke tradition.

In the top right-hand corner of page one The Times proclaimed in a two-line, one-column announcement: "Hillary at the South Pole."

The last time The Times bent tradition that way was when Hillary reached the top of Mt. Everest.

that he and the four other members of his party will fly back "by the first available American aircraft." The next plane is due to leave for McMurdo Sound Monday.

Earlier reports had placed Fuchs within 200 miles of the pole, and the headquarters of the British expedition in London had expected him to link up with Hillary Sunday.

Hillary expressed fear today that Fuchs' expedition will not complete the run to Scott Base before February.

The New Zealand Antarctic expedition headquarters here emphasized that Hillary's polar dash was not for honors or a race but to ease the route-finding burden on Fuchs.

Wicks Fails to Settle Crippling Pulp Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor Minister Lyle Wicks today failed to settle a seven-week strike in British Columbia's pulp and paper industry.

Mr. Wicks said the government has done all it could to help settle the dispute. He reopened discussions at the request of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

"The companies made an offer of a longer contract with added benefits. This was rejected."

"Both sides are adamant and hold firmly to their positions."

High level talk ain't much good if y're only referring to decibels.

If it gets any more crowded there won't be enuff o' the south pole to go round.

CANADIAN TROOPS ON ALERT

OTTAWA (CP) — The 2nd battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment based at London, Ont., has been "earmarked" for stand-by duty in case it is needed in an emergency anywhere in the world, Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes said today.

Bronze Medals To Be Awarded Good Citizens

Bronze medals are to be awarded to 50 citizens considered to have made "outstanding contributions" to life in Greater Victoria during the past 100 years, Capt. D. J. Proudfoot, executive secretary of Greater Victoria Centennial Committee, announced today.

It is expected that the medals will be presented by Princess Margaret during her centennial visit here July 12.

The Princess, in turn, will receive a gold souvenir medal from the Victoria Numismatic Society.

Both the gold and the bronze medals will be engraved with the B.C. centennial crest on one side and a likeness of Sir James Douglas on the reverse.

"The 50 outstanding citizens will be chosen by five unknown judges," Captain Proudfoot said, "and the judges have still to be selected."

Representations have been made to Buckingham Palace through the B.C. government asking Princess Margaret to make the presentations.

"We have every hope that she will graciously consent to perform this office," Capt. Proudfoot said.

Atomic Sub Tests Hinted By Russians

MOSCOW (AP) — The newspaper Soviet Fleet indicates the Russians may be testing atomic submarines.

In a review of a booklet on submarines the navy newspaper discusses the advantages and disadvantages of atomic submarines "as discovered by testing."

The Swedish naval year book, just issued, says the Soviet Union probably already has three atomic subs.

The United States has four atomic submarines in service and a fifth is expected to join the fleet this year.

NATO Commitment

OTTAWA (CP) — No substantial change in Canada's military contribution to NATO is expected in the near future, Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes said today.

Cannot Hurt, May Help Says British PM

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Macmillan suggested tonight that Russia and the Western powers sign a non-aggression pact.

"This has been done before," Macmillan said in a television report to the people. "It would do no harm. It might do good."

He then suggested that ultimately the heads of the great powers might meet to resolve East-West differences.

Russia has suggested several times in recent correspondence with Western government leaders that a non-aggression pact, in one form or another, would contribute to world peace. It also is campaigning now for a summit meeting.

Macmillan said Britain will leave no stone unturned in attempting to secure an agreement through which the Soviet Union and the Western world may live in peace.

Noting that the NATO government heads in Paris last month agreed on new efforts to break the East-West arms deadlock, Macmillan said:

"I don't mind whether we make it through the United Nations or at some smaller meeting. Whether it is done this way or through diplomatic channels or a combination of both, the object would be to clear away the rubble of old controversies and disagreements—perhaps to get the path ready for a meeting of heads of government."

Macmillan's views on the present state of East-West relations were set forth in what was technically billed as a Conservative party political broadcast.

It was also by way of a final statement before he leaves Tuesday on a tour of five Commonwealth countries. The prime minister will be away from London for nearly six weeks.

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials showed no enthusiasm today over a suggestion by Prime Minister Macmillan that a non-aggression pact between Russia and Western nations "might do good."

High officials in Washington said they had no advance knowledge that Macmillan would put forward his suggestion.

Nor, they said, was there any proposal, under study here to change U.S. policy in that respect.

Macmillan Pact Bid Welcomed by Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—A proposal by British Prime Minister Macmillan in London today that Russia and the Western powers sign a non-aggression pact was welcomed here as opening new possibilities for negotiation.

"Prime Minister Macmillan's statement," said acting external affairs minister David Fulton, "opens up interesting and refreshing possibilities for negotiations which it is Canada's desire to see brought about."

Mr. Fulton commented to a reporter that Prime Minister Diefenbaker, on his return from last month's NATO summit meeting in Paris, made clear "Canada would welcome the resumption of negotiations, especially on disarmament."

TAYLOR-MADE FOR RECRUITS

Sexy Army Uniform Call to Arms?

LONDON (UP) — The War Office turned down sex today—at least in uniforms.

Officials turned a deaf ear to a suggestion from an acknowledged sartorial expert that the new British army dress outfit should be "sexy" to attract more volunteers into Her Majesty's forces.

The War Office is presently considering a uniform change. An announcement was expected in the next few days. John Taylor, editor of the authoritative Tailor and Cutter here had some advice in the current issue of the army publication Soldier, on what the announcement should be.

To attract recruits, give them a uniform to attract gals "as they did in the old days," Taylor wrote.

He suggested this colorful ensemble for today's Tommy: A scarlet jacket with shiny black belt, black trousers with scarlet stripe down the side, black shoes, white shirt, a narrow black tie and a black officer's cap with a scarlet band. And instead of an overcoat, Taylor suggested a dashing cape.

Taylor said today's khaki-attired British troops looked like "lumps on legs" in uniforms he described variously as "horrible," "hideous" and "in the worst conceivable taste."

The clothing magazine editor recommended that the beret, worn by the majority of British soldiers, should be "burned."

HAPPY AS THIS FAMILY LOOKS, they know what it is to have their home and plans for the future shattered by the impact of polio. Mrs. Iris Munro, 624 Lampson, seen here with her husband, Jim, and boys, Kenny and Jimmy, has been in a wheelchair for over three years as a result of the paralytic effects of the disease. Four-year-old Kenny (left) was born in an iron lung two months after his mother was stricken.

THIRD SHOT NEXT WEEK

Polio Victims Wish They Had Salk Vaccine

By MICHAEL ROSE

During next week, Monday through Friday, polio vaccine will be available to over 15,000 adults in Greater Victoria at Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals.

These are people who received their first two shots in May and June last year and are now ready for the vital third dose.

This is not a haphazard handing out of three doses of medicine, but a carefully planned program designed to offer maximum protection against three strains of virus.

"Good evidence is available," said a medical spokesman, "to show that adequate protection is not obtained from the first two injections and a third is necessary to ensure protection."

"Further," he said, "there are no distressing side effects and no danger to those receiving injections if they have a cold or have just recovered from influenza."

These 15,000 people have an unprecedented opportunity to provide themselves for the first time in history with almost total protection against one of the most universally crippling diseases.

Housekeeper No Substitute for Mother

During the past two years, Mr. Brown has had the problem of caring for the three children in addition to holding down his job.

Great difficulty is experienced by many people in this situation in finding suitable housekeepers. The Brown family has had five and Mr. Brown says, "they are very good with the children but no housekeeper can ever entirely take the place of a mother."

Mrs. Iris Munro, 624 Lampson Street, was a registered nurse before she married and familiar with the disease but in October, 1953, she was stricken and a little over two months later her second boy, Kenny, was born in an iron lung.

Mrs. Munro is still confined to a wheelchair and dependent on a housekeeper for heavy work but keeps occupied at night by acting as a private nurse's telephone directory.

"When a family is hit with polio," she said, "there is no warning, we can tell you that. One day we were an average normal couple with one little one, and another of the way, working slowly toward, someday, having a house and business of our own. The next day our dream had burst and we had a fight for my life and that of our unborn child."

Some, like Ken Bishop, 1047 Wollaston, have been luckier and made recoveries that enable them to carry out a normal day's work.

Not totally affected at the outset of the disease Mr. Bishop describes himself as being "very fortunate."

He was stricken in November, 1955, and after spending more than a year in hospital and the Western Rehabilitation Centre in Vancouver, returned to his job, working two or three hours a week until by July, 1957, he was able to work full time.

These and other people who have been polio victims do not want sympathy or pity for they are trying to live lives where they will be the most useful to their families and the community.

Each one of them will feel himself more than amply rewarded if every one of the 15,139 people eligible for shots this next week gets them.

The vaccine is Canadian-bred and refined in the Connaught Laboratories of the University of Toronto. It is supplied to the medical association for the purposes of this drive by the manufacturers at cost price.

Look at the card you were given last May, showing the day, time and hospital you should go to.

If you feel any doubts about attending, think of the consequences if one of your family was paralyzed in an iron lung.

The issue precipitated a nine-day tieup of the CPR last January. The three-man commission headed by Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of the Supreme Court of Canada is expected to report this month.

Hot Dogs Spark Warm Reception for Hillary

SOUTH POLE (AP)—Sir Edmund Hillary and his band of New Zealanders feasted on beans and hot dogs today after completing their trek to the South Pole over nearly 1,300 miles of snow and ice.

Meanwhile, London papers hit out at the publicity given Hillary's feat of being a "contest winner."

The 35-year-old conqueror of Mount Everest pulled into the American scientific station here today after camping in sight of it Friday night with tractor gasoline left for only 20 more miles.

The five-man band was the first to make it overland from the coast in 46 years. Later trips to the pole, including the ones that set up the 17-man station here, have been by air.

Lieut. Vernon Houk, military commander of the station, and scientific leader Pallo Mogensen went out to meet Hillary in a snow truck. "Glad to be here," the rangy New Zealand beeper told them.

The Americans led the New Zealand caravan of three tractors two miles to the spot which U.S. scientists compute as the geographic bottom of the world. It is encircled by oil drums.

The group stopped to look at it, but Hillary did not step inside the circle. Then they went to the station mess hall for their first hot meal in several days.

The four New Zealanders who accompanied Hillary are Murray Ellis, Peter Mulgrew, Jim Bates and Derek Wright. Their party made a forced march of 70 miles in 24 hours to arrive in sight of the U.S. base.

In London, The Daily Telegraph says it is "regrettable" that Sir Edmund Hillary's race to the South Pole ahead of Dr. Vivian Fuchs attracted so much publicity.

Other British newspapers in editorials also emphasized that Hillary's feat, though praise-worthy, was only incidental to the main purpose of the Commonwealth trans-Antarctic

Oil Import Curbs Attacked by Martin

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Canada, with a Conservative government talking about diverting 15 per cent of its trade from the U.S. to the United Kingdom, should expect retaliatory trade restrictive steps from the Americans, opposition members suggested in the Commons Friday.

Paul Martin, former minister of health and welfare, and a possible candidate for the Liberal leadership hammered hard on the fact that a government which talks of taking trade away from one country should not be surprised when that country retaliates.

He was referring to the action by the U.S. in bringing Canada under the American "voluntary restriction" program which substantially affects Canadian exports of oil into the western U.S.

He suggested it was significant that Canada up until recent days was excluded from the policy pursued by the American government in restricting oil imports from other producing countries.

"We in this House have an obligation to ask ourselves why

this very serious action (restricting Canadian oil exports into the U.S.) has been taken by a friendly country," Mr. Martin said.

A shift of 15 per cent of Canada's trade from one country to another represent some $625,000,000, he pointed out.

"This is an extremely important matter which affects the economic well-being of this country and one which could in a very large measure have much to do with the continuance of the high level of unemployment which now prevails in Canada," Mr. Martin declared.

He suggested it was not unreasonable to conclude that Canada's talk of shifting its trade might have been one reason why the U.S. deliberately resorted to a 15 per cent cut in oil imports from Canada.

'Utter Nonsense'—Fleming

Mr. Fleming, minister of finance, interjected, "Nonsense, utter nonsense."

Mr. Martin said the minister did not know what had prompted the U.S. to take its restrictive trade steps involving Canadian oil.

"More regrettably the honorable gentleman who is now in a position to have better information does not know much more about what was in the mind of the American government than I do," said Mr. Martin.

"I could not know less," said Mr. Fleming.

Mr. Martin persisted. He said the government owes it to parliament and to the Canadian people to indicate now, or soon, whether it is persisting in its policy of a 15 per cent shift in trade from the U.S. to the United Kingdom.

"Because that policy is calculated in my judgment to bring about the very situation of which I am now complaining," he said. He noted that

Prime Minister Diefenbaker while he had talked about a proposed 15 per cent shift in trade at a press conference with the parliamentary press gallery, and later at Montreal, had never referred to that proposal in the House of Commons.

Mr. Martin said there were reports that in Washington Mr. Fleming had told his counterparts in the U.S. government not to take the 15 per cent trade shift proposal too seriously.

"Nonsense," shouted Mr. Fleming.

"Does that mean that this proposal is to be taken seriously?" enquired Mr. Martin.

"That is pretty well reasoning," retorted Mr. Fleming.

"It is the first real indication that we have now had that it is the policy of the government to bring about a shift in Canadian purchases," snapped Mr. Martin.

Erhart Regier (CPC-Burnaby-Coquitlam) said that the Canadian government simply registering a protest with the U.S. government was not enough.

STARVATION DEATH SEQUEL

Naturopath Probe To Be Considered

The B.C. government will consider a suggested probe into the activities of naturopathic physicians but has taken no such steps as yet, Health Minister Eric Martin said today.

He was commenting on a suggestion from Dr. Lynn Gunn, registrar of the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons, that the government should probe naturopathic activities following the death on Christmas Day of Mrs. Margaret Mary Howard, 30, of Vancouver.

Her death was attributed by Dr. Harold Dyer, North Vancouver coroner, to starvation and dehydration.

Her husband, J. W. Howard, said a Vancouver naturopath ordered his wife to fast for lengthy periods as a treatment for cancer.

Mr. Howard claimed she died because doctors forced her to take food.

"I cannot say whether the government will conduct an inquiry until we know more about the case," Mr. Martin said.

In Vancouver, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said he had not yet received the coroner's report and could not comment until he had studied it.

Dr. Gunn said his suggestion was a personal one and not made as registrar of the college of physicians and surgeons. He added:

"We sympathize sincerely with Mr. Howard in the loss of his wife. Unfortunately some people still believe false dietary theories which first became popular among some people at the turn of the century."

"These theories are erroneous, harmful and dangerous and have been disproved by the medical profession long ago."

Martin Due In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Paul Martin, former federal minister of health and welfare, will be here Sunday and Monday to meet B.C. delegates attending the Liberal party's national convention in Ottawa, Jan. 14, 15 and 16.

Mr. Martin is contesting Liberal party leadership with Lester Pearson, former secretary of state for external affairs, and Mayor Don Mackay of Calgary.

Canada Undisturbed By U.S. Wheat Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Gordon Churchill said today in the Commons he believes no Canadian action is necessary in the face of United States plans to increase substantially its farm surplus disposal program this year.

Replying to Lionel Chevrier (L-Montreal Laurier), who described the increase of 50 per cent as "substantial," Mr. Churchill said the program is not likely to interfere with Canadian wheat sales to cash customers.

Mayor Ready to Name Store Sale Holdouts

Block Purchase of Land For Woodward's Building

Mayor Percy Scurrell today said "if necessary" he will name the three or four property owners blocking a $7,000,000 department store and new city hall for Victoria by holding out for high land prices.

He made the statement as events pointed to cancellation of Woodward Stores Ltd. proposal if negotiations were not concluded by Friday. The firm proposes to buy almost all the city and privately-owned property between Pandora, Fisgard, Douglas and Government Streets.

NEAR COLLAPSE

The mayor said the deal, under negotiation for more than six weeks, now is "just on the ragged edge of collapse because of the attitude of three or four property-holders."

"This is just a message to those concerned," he added, "but, if necessary, I will name names in a few days."

Under the deal, Woodward's would build a huge three-storey department store on the site with parking space for at least 300 cars. Victoria would sell its city hall and build a new one. Confirmation that negotiations are stalled and "teetering on the verge of collapse," came from Russell Ker, real estate agent handling negotiations for the company, and Courtney Haddock, Victoria manager.

POSSIBLE TRAGEDY

"Collapse of negotiations would be a tragedy for the city since it would lose a $7,000,000 investment just because a few greedy people are trying to hold us up."

Mr. Haddock said the project was nearer the $7,000,000 figure than previous estimates of $5,000,000. He said there was only a week left for negotiating because the Woodward's president was due to leave for Europe Jan. 10.

"If we don't meet that time

element then the Victoria development will be set back about six years because the company has to decide whether to build in Calgary or Victoria first.

"If negotiations are not completed here soon then the Calgary store will be built first."

Mr. Haddock said that no further meeting has been scheduled so far by the hold-outs.

"We are offering them premium prices and they will never do as well if we move out of the picture but they still seem to want more money."

"We're leaning over backwards to do our part but after all Woodward's has its pride too."

It also was learned by The Times that at least half of the directors of the firm were in favor of building the new store in Saanich where property would be cheaper and staff easier to hire.

Mr. Haddock said it would be "unfortunate" if the Victoria site fell through because all merchants, including the hold-outs, would suffer by the competition of a Woodward's store located outside the city.

A third possible recourse is re-building on its own land which faces Pandora, Blanshard and Cormorant. But this, because of its smaller size would rule out as large a store as proposed for the city hall site.

Ald. Austin Curtis, chairman of the finance committee who revealed the proposal to council Nov. 19 said at the time that because of the project would be "a crime" that Victorians would never forgive if the new development went outside the city.

"Memloose Chickman?"

Centennial Coin Totem Defended

Implications of "bad medicine" in the totemic design of B.C.'s centennial silver dollar were flatly denied here today by Wilson Duff, provincial anthropologist and leading student of native art.

The tempest in a tepee started in Vancouver Friday when Guy Williams, of the Native Brotherhood of B.C., claimed the totem depicted on the coin is the mortuary pole of the Tsimpsian tribe.

Mr. Williams says the dollar, a special minting, issued on Jan. 1 to commemorate the centenary, may be taboo to West Coast Indians because it "carries death."

He has dubbed the coin "memloose chickman" — death money.

Mr. Duff denies that the design is from a mortuary pole. He is certain the artist, Stephen Trenka, based it on a Haida tribe house pole which stands in the entrance hall to the Provincial Museum here.

BOOK CHECKED

To back his contention, Mr. Duff referred to a book on Primitive Art by Franz Boas, a standard work on native art. On page 209 is a drawing of the museum's Haida pole, and the coin design closely follows the top portion of this sketch.

An official guide to the museum's anthropological collection, published in 1909, describes the totem thusly:

"This pole formerly stood at the back of the house so large that people must shout to make themselves heard in it. This belonged to Chief Nestakana, of the 'Great House' division of the Eagles of Skidegate, Queen Charlotte Islands, and shows two of his crests."

"The upper figure is the raven with its beak broken and bent down, as told in one of the stories of its adventures, and below is a whale."

Backing up Mr. Williams "death" claim is Mrs. Ellen Neel of Vancouver, an expert on the carver's art. Mrs. Neel agrees the symbol actually has a burial connotation.

"The design is terribly unfortunate for the B.C. Celebrations," she said. In the opinion of Allan Klenman, president of the Victoria Numismatic Society and a director of the Canadian Numismatic Association, the coin "has accomplished its purpose in excellent fashion."

He pointed out the design was a "stylized" reproduction of the Haida pole and "might include something which could be interpreted as a death motif." "But," he said, "whether or not the design has such implications, it represents the Indian art of B.C., and as such will be cherished by collectors everywhere."

Said L. J. Wallace, chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee: "The proposed design was widely publicized last year and no person objected. In any event, whether its a mortuary design or not, I don't think it will wound the death knell for the centenary."

THREE-STOREY HOME NEVER FINISHED INSIDE

'Haunted' House by Seashore for Sale

Victoria's "haunted house" is for sale.

One of the city's best-known landmarks, the big, square unpainted house is situated at the tip of Harling or Chinese Point, below Gonzales.

It was built in the early years of the century by James Sterling Smith, member of a local pioneer family. The house has been occupied all the time and no one is quite sure how it got the "haunted" tag.

One reason might be its forbidding appearance; another that it is adjoining the Chinese cemetery. The solidly-built, three-storey home was never finished inside.

Graceful chandeliers and an elegant staircase are testimony, however, to the owner's ambitious plans.

A ballroom taking up the complete west side of the main floor is one of the impressive features.

Upstairs there is a billiard room, and during the First World War the house was a mecca for young people of the neighborhood.

MONTE ROBERTS

I have just had a chat with Old Man Juan, and I regret very much to report, Old Man Juan is lonely.

In case you are a newcomer to these parts, and do not know Old Man Juan as well as the loyal constituents and I do, it is only fair to tell you his more formal name is Juan de Fuca Strait.

But anyone who knows him calls him Old Man Juan, because he is a very old man indeed, and subject to the crotchety moods and sudden furies of the aged.

Well, even before I spoke to Old Man Juan, I could tell he was in a sombre mood. As I strolled down the new boat launching ramp at Clover Point, toward the cluster of boom logs seeking refuge on the beach, I noted his dull grey appearance.

He was breathing sullenly, raising a roller up, letting it sink down, raising it up again.

The Old Man was, in short, in a deceptive mood, the type which might be interpreted as tranquil by the uninitiated, for there were no spectacular whitecaps or cross-chops to show his power.

He was just lying there, breathing in and out, ready to pay his disrespect to any small craft unwary enough to believe Old Man Juan was really a calm fellow after all. When I got down to the beach, I tossed a pebble at Old Man Juan, to attract his attention.

Hi, I said to Old Man Juan, long time no see. "Long time no see," said Old Man Juan, rolling a softly-breaking wavelet over my shoe tops. "Is putting it mildly." I'm sorry, I said, but I've been busy.

"So," said Old Man Juan, "have all of my alleged friends."

You sound unhappy, I said.

"I am NOT unhappy," Old Man Juan gurgled as he whipped a deadhead onto shore, narrowly missing my shinbone. "I am just lonely."

Tsk, tsk, I tsk-tsked. "Where," asked Old Man Juan, dramatically, "are my friends of yesterday? The friends for whom I have done so much?"

As for instance? I asked. "As for instance Bert Thomas. Who ever heard of Bert Thomas before he and I became friends. But where is Bert Thomas now? Did he send me a Christmas present, even a Christmas card?"

I don't suppose so, I supposed. "And my friend Cliff Lumdon," said Old Man Juan. Ignoring me. "And my little sweetheart, Marilyn. And Amy. And Ben. And Bill Muir. And John Geise. And Flo, who started it all. And all the others. Where are they now?"

I heard a distinct sob as Old Man Juan dumped a salty tear in my lap.

Friendship, I said, is a sometime thing. "Never mind your soft words," said Old Man Juan de Fuca. "I am a lonely old man. Nobody keeps me company any more."

Cheer up, I said, there is always the garbage scow. And suddenly a sullen, slow roller broke into a whitecap and flung a grapefruit rind at me.

They are George Gregory, MLA for Victoria, Forrest L. Shaw, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, Senator Nancy Hodges, Dr. F. T. Fahey, former Liberal MP for Victoria; Arthur Cox, secretary of Victoria Liberal Association; Mrs. J. Nelson, J. McLellan, and Mrs. J. T. Jones.

The convention has been called by Senator Sydney Smith, president of the B.C. Liberal Association.

The executive committee of Oak Bay Liberal Association will meet Tuesday to elect delegates to attend the convention.

The meeting will be held in the Tango Room, 2186 Oak Bay Avenue, at 8 p.m.

"Proposals for carrying on our association work during the balance of the winter will also be considered," Jim Gorst, secretary of the Oak Bay Liberal Association said.

Forestry Issues to Dominate 'Sawdust and Chips' Session

By PETER MURRAY

The second session of B.C.'s 25th legislative assembly, due to open in less than three weeks, is expected to be a "sawdust and chips" session.

Forestry will be the dominant theme as the MLAs gather Jan. 23 for the official opening.

Some legislation will be introduced by the government based on recommendations in the royal commission report of Chief Justice Gordon Sloan.

The report itself, released in September, will spark debate and members will also discuss the recent 10-year appointment of Mr. Sloan as government forests adviser.

Other main topics of the session, expected to last the usual six or seven weeks, will be these:

STORES CLOSING — The government is expected to shift responsibility for regulation of corner stores' operations to the municipalities.

This action was demanded at the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention in Nelson, and the Social Credit convention in October passed a resolution urging the government to repeal that section of the Municipal Act.

Revision of the Municipal Act will take up some of the legislators' time. It was passed in a hurry at the last session and many faults have been found.

VICTORIA CITY CHARTER — A private bill submitted by Social Credit MLA and former alderman J. Donald Smith seeking approval for a city charter is expected to be rejected.

The Victoria council wants a charter similar to that under which the city of Vancouver operates, but the government fears that other cities in the province may ask similar privileges if it is granted.

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY — A special legislative committee will make a study of the juvenile delinquency problem in B.C. and decide whether a royal commission inquiry is warranted.

This action was decided by Attorney-General Bonner after he had looked at the British system of delinquency control during his European trip.

SUNDAY SPORT — Vancouver finally seems assured of being granted the right to follow commercial sport on Sunday afternoons.

Residents approved Sunday sport by an overwhelming majority in another plebiscite last

FIRST WEEKEND OF 1958 BRINGS WARMTH, CLOUDS

The year's first weekend will be warm—for this season—and mostly cloudy.

But there will be partial breaks in the clouds with sun streaming through. Scattered showers are expected, but nothing of a constant nature.

Temperatures expected are slightly above normal, averaging 42 degrees tonight and in the 50s Sunday.

"It will be a pleasant Sabbath for this time of year," said Mr. Mackie.

month, and Attorney-General Bonner said the government would support a charter amendment. It must be approved by the courts before becoming law, however.

BUDGET—Great interest will be centred on the budget to be brought down by Premier (and finance minister) Bennett in mid-February.

The budget will give an indication of the state of the province's finances and prove or disprove recent reports that revenues dipped sharply during the past year.

The premier has indicated that the budget will fall below last year's record $296,000,000 total.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION—There'll be more criticism of the allegedly "cold-hearted" Compensation Board and the government may set up some form of inquiry.

Opposition members and some Social Crediters attacked the board at the last session, and a resolution was approved at the Sacred convention calling for an inquiry.

WENNER-GREN—The Opposition can also be expected to cast a critical eye at the government's agreements with Swedish industrialist Axel Wenner-Gren.

Since the last session, when Wenner-Gren was the topic of the hottest debates, plans have been disclosed for a mammoth hydro-development on the Peace River. The CCF will undoubtedly demand that the publicly-owned B.C. Power Commission be given the job instead.

The Sommers case probably won't be discussed much at this session.

Charges of conspiring to accept bribes against former Social Credit forests minister R. E. Sommers and three other men and companies will be before the courts at that time.

There'll be three new members for this session, and also a new Speaker.

City Printer, Pioneer Family Descendant, Dead

Victoria printer and member of a pioneer family, Ernest I. Robinson, 52, died Friday in Royal Jubilee Hospital after a four-month illness.

Born in Victoria, he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Robinson, also natives of Victoria, who survive him.

The late Mr. Robinson was proprietor of Robinson Press, Cormorant Street, which he established 30 years ago. He entered the printing trade at the age of 14.

He was a long-time member of the Uplands Golf Club. Survivors include the widow, Ann Elizabeth, at the residence, 2750 Burdick; one daughter, Dolores Bailey, of Victoria, and his parents.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Dame Flora Tells Her Clansmen Of Dunvegan's Fairy Flag Legend

In the lounge at Oak Bay Beach Hotel, Friday evening, a chief sat with her clansmen and told them a legend that goes back in time more than 400 years.

It was the story of the fairy flag of Dunvegan, that protects and brings good luck to Clan MacLeod. The narrator was the chief of the clan, Dame Flora MacLeod.

Standing quietly by the piano in the attractive hotel lounge, with head held high and eyes sparkling, Dame Flora told the ancient tale in its several versions, with a quiet sincerity that held the attention of everyone in the room.

At its conclusion, Ronnie Chisholm, wearing a MacLeod tartan kilt, played "The Road to the Isles" on the accordion. The chief kept time to the tune with tapping toe and quick movements of her hands.

The informal gathering in the lounge followed the third annual banquet of the local branch of the clan, held in the main dining room of the hotel.

This banquet, started two years ago when Dame Flora made her first visit to the city (and usually held in February), is arranged to celebrate the birthday of the chief on Feb. 3.

Charles MacLeod, president of the Victoria group, was chairman and seated with him at the head table were Dame Flora, Dr. Hector MacLeod, Mrs. Catherine MacLeod Binko, Mr. Binko, Mr. Kenneth MacLeod, Mrs. Edith MacLeod, Miss I. Robertson, Padre and Mrs. Douglas Kendall and Mr. Robin MacLeod.

The head table was decorated with ribbons of the gay and beautiful yellow and red MacLeod tartan, yellow chrysanthemums and green candles in yellow holders. Two birthday cakes iced in yellow and green added a festive touch.

A dinner program included brief remarks by Charles MacLeod and introduction by him of the local executive, Mrs. Binko, Kenneth MacLeod, Miss Robertson, Mrs. Harold Beckwith, Alex MacLeod Baird and Don MacLeod.

Dame Flora addressed the gathering. She told a little of her present travels first to New Zealand and Australia then Los Angeles and San Francisco, Portland, Seattle and then Victoria.

She reminded her listeners that the word "clan" means "children."

"If that is so then we are all children of one name and so we are kinsfolk," she said quietly.

In conclusion she repeated the clan slogan—"Hold Fast!"

"As I will do to you and you, I hope, will do to Dunvegan."

Master Ian Baird presented a cheque for $50 to the Chief from the ladies' committee of the local branch, "to be used as she wished." The Chief immediately returned it to the treasurer, "for work of the clan in Victoria."

Arrangements for the banquet were in charge of Mrs. Binko and Miss Robertson. Table decorations were arranged by Mrs. Ella Ritchie. Piper Bill Mossie led the gathering to the dining room.

Dame Flora concluded a week's visit in Victoria this morning when she left Patricia Bay by air for Winnipeg, en route to her home in Scotland.

Wedding Vows At Coleman

Of interest to Victorians is the recent wedding in Coleman, Alta., between Frances Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Graham of Coleman, and Duncan Frederic, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tolson of Victoria Avenue in this city.

The young couple were united in marriage by Rev. F. Dykes in St. Alban's Anglican Church.

A gown of ivory brocade was worn by the dark-haired bride as she walked up the aisle on her father's arm. Her princess line dress was styled in a ballerina length, with fitted bodice featuring a sweetheart neckline and lily point sleeves.

An illusion net fingertip veil misted from a tiny pillbox of lace sewn with seed pearls. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls belonging to her mother. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

A gown of ruby red velvet was worn by maid of honor Miss Mary Ann Rutherford. Styled on princess lines, the dress featured three-quarter-length sleeves and a deep scoop neckline.

The bride's brother, John Graham, was best man and ushering was George Dibble.

During the signing of the register, Miss Frances Dibble sang "The Wedding Prayer" accompanied by Mrs. S. Denney at the organ.

Turtle Mountain Playground hall was the scene of a reception following the ceremony. A three-tiered cake topped with a goblet filled with white roses centred the bridal table. Arthur Graham, the bride's uncle, proposed a toast.

A rose wool sheath dress was worn by the new Mrs. Tolson for her wedding trip to Harrison Hot Springs. She topped the ensemble with a black sealskin coat. Her fur hat and accessories were winter white and her purse and hat were black.

Couple Wed in Vancouver Church Planning Year's Visit to Europe

A year's honeymoon in Europe is ahead for newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Cornel N. Popa, who were married recently, in the Greek Orthodox Church, Vancouver.

Heavy white satin created an exquisite wedding gown for the bride, Eunice Eleanor, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Woodward, Cordova Bay, when she took her vows with the son of Mr. Popa and the late Mrs. Popa, Bucharest, Roumania.

Bodice of the bridal gown was embroidered and styled with scoop neckline and lily-pointed sleeves. The full skirt swept into a train.

RED TAFFETA

Matron of honor, sister of the bride, Mrs. Harold Leeson, Portland, Ore., wore a full-length gown of red taffeta with white taffeta inset trimmed with pearls on the bodice. Her bolero and gloves matched her gown.

Bridesmaid, Miss Jean McMullen, Vancouver, wore a copper-toned taffeta gown styled on princess lines with matching bolero. Both carried colonial bouquets of red and white carnations, chrysanthemums, fern and silvered holly and wore silvered holly hair bandeaus.

Little flower girls, Miss Janis Leeson and Miss Trudy Leeson, neices of the bride, wore short, princess dresses of red taffeta with white and gold bodices. They carried bouquets of red and white carnations and silvered holly with white streamers. Both wore silvered holly hairbands.

Best man was Eugene Stefanescu, Vancouver, and ushers were Don Callen, Victoria, and R. Bombaru, Vancouver. Rev. Gavallas conducted the double-ring ceremony.

The reception was held at Fraser Hallmark Hall, Vancouver, where guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a navy faille gown with white accessories and mauve corsage.

For traveling on a honeymoon to San Francisco, before leaving with her husband for Europe in February for a year, the bride wore a black ripple wool suit with winter white hat and black accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid.

Mr. Popa is a 1956 graduate of the University of British Columbia in forestry and Mrs. Popa is a 1957 graduate of the university in arts.

Reimer-Johnson Vows at Fairfield

A quiet wedding was solemnized in the vestry of Fairfield United Church, New Year's Eve, when Rev. T. R. Haythorne heard the vows of Tonia Maureen Johnson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Raymond Johnson, 1032 Fairfield Road, and Gerald Anthony Reimer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Reimer, 1248 Oscar Street.

The bride was attended by Miss Carol Reimer, sister of the groom. Richard Cameron was best man.

A small reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Reimer left by plane on Wednesday for Calgary, where they will make their home.

Fire Alarm Too Late, Blasts Chief

(From CP Dispatches)

LANGLEY — "That fire had been going for eight minutes before anybody called the fire department," said Fire Chief Robert Norman after flames caused about $25,000 in damage to the Jim Scott service station here Friday.

"We were beaten before we got there," he added bitterly. "People were so busy moving cars out of the station that they didn't even think of calling us."

First alarm to the fire department, he said, came from a man who lives across the street from the garage. He heard the noise as residents rolled vehicles out of danger and phoned the professional fire-fighters.

The blaze broke out apparently after oil spilled from a heater.

VANDALS REMANDED

NORTH VANCOUVER — Two high school students were remanded one week without plea Friday on charges of breaking and entering their own school last month.

Glenn E. Miller, 17, and James Douglas Fletcher, 16, were released on $1,000 bail each by Magistrate John Poole.

They were transferred from juvenile court to police court to face the charges, laid in connection with $5,500 damage to Delbrook High School Dec. 28.

SWAMPED BY RAIN

TERRACE — Torrential rain turned Terrace streets into rivers of slush Friday. Dozens of cars were stalled in this central B.C. village. The rain began at 11 p.m. Thursday and was still falling late Friday afternoon, on top of 50 to 60 inches of snow.

NEW AIR LINK

PRINCE GEORGE — Pacific Western Airlines have announced plans to make this city the major stepping-off point on the air route into the Wenner-Gren concession.

Six aircraft along with three helicopters will be on hand here this winter to fly survey and drilling crews north into the Rocky Mountain Trench, which Swedish millionaire Axel Wenner-Gren proposes to develop.

No Decision Made On Wheat Payment

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Gordon Churchill said Friday the government has reached no decision on whether to make a deficiency payment — or subsidy — on the 1956-57 wheat crop.

"That subject has been under study but no decision has been reached at the moment," he said in the Commons.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Family Capacity Dictates Vegetable Garden Sowings

By JACK BEASTALL

A well organized vegetable garden should produce sufficient variety and quantity for the kitchen table throughout the year.

To accomplish this, careful planning is necessary. Gluts of vegetables are caused by over sowing crops which will not keep once they have matured. A good example of this is the cauliflower.

Each plant occupies an appreciable amount of space and produces only one head which must be cut and eaten as soon as it matures.

Unfortunately most gardens are comparatively small and only a few plants can be accommodated, and the habit of maturing all at once.

Letture presents very much the same problem as this is another crop which must be used as soon as it matures. One often sees rows of beautifully headed plants which cannot possibly be consumed.

MILD YOUTHS

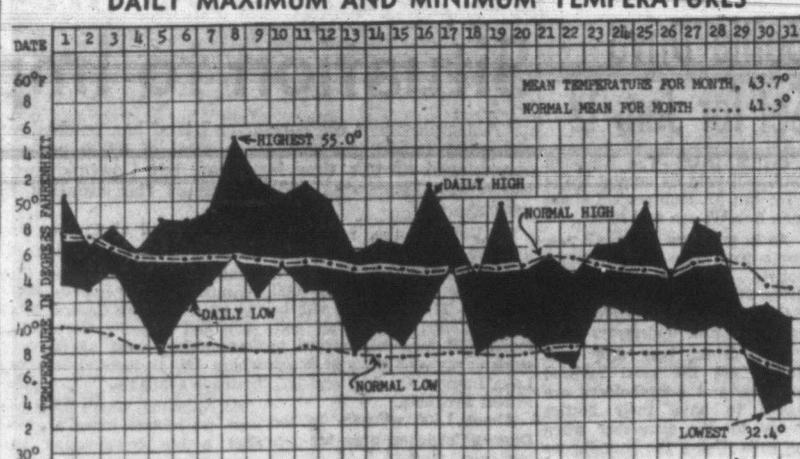

Another salad crop, the biggest proportion of which usually goes to waste is radish. To enjoy the full flavor of this crop it should be eaten when quite young, when it will be found crisp and mild.

Runner beans may also be included in crops which are mismanaged. The rows are usually too long and the beans become too tough and stringy before they can be used.

Two facts make themselves very clear. They are the need for careful planning and the correct choice of varieties. The golden rule should be to sow little and often so that one crop succeeds the other without a break.

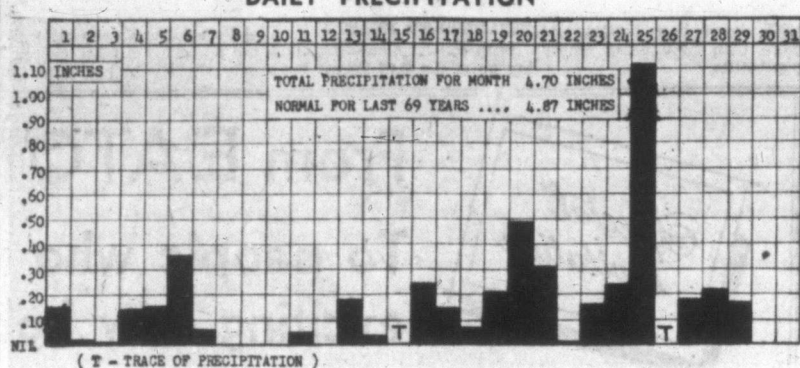

The importance of variety cannot be over-emphasized. Lettuce should be sown late in summer for cutting in November, or sown in the fall to

Eye-Appealing Array of Cars At Chicago Show

CHICAGO (AP) — An eye-appealing array of automobiles, probably the most glamorous ever presented under one roof, went on display today at the International Amphitheatre.

The Golden Jubilee Chicago Automobile Show begins a nine-day run with approximately 400 cars and trucks and the usual adjuncts of an auto show, including a musical revue. Included in the exhibits are 1958 models of every U.S. car, a large group of antique vehicles dating back more than half a century and 100 foreign-built units.

An estimated 25,000 persons, including representatives of the industry, press, radio and television and others, saw a preview of the show Friday night. Chrysler Corp. included in its exhibit a first public showing of the United States Army's two Redstone and the Jupiter. The weapons—genuine missiles and not scale models—have self-contained guidance systems and are said to be relatively immune to known types of counter-measures.

CITY BANK CLEARINGS TOP $500,000,000

Volume of business at the Victoria clearing house for 1957 was $518,385,445, topping the $500,000,000 mark for the second successive year.

The 1957 total, however, was $32,187,808 short of the record $550,573,253 in 1956.

Drop in the 1957 total occurred mostly in the past six months, though the December total indicated a more normal rate of spending. This was $38,911,535, compared with $40,832,692 in the same 1956 month.

In the last half of 1957, average weekly exchanges were from 10 to 15 per cent lower than those of 1956.

Doukhobor Delegation En Route to Moscow

VANCOUVER (CP) — A four-man Sons of Freedom Doukhobor delegation left here Friday for Moscow in hopes of completing plans for a mass move of the religious sect to new homes in Russia.

Bill Mooljelsky, delegation leader and Freedomite secretary, said the delegation plans to stop over in Ottawa to confer with Russian Ambassador Dimitri Chuvahin.

In Russia the delegation will inspect sites offered there for relocation of the sect, Mooljelsky said.

The Russian ambassador said in Ottawa Friday he sees no difficulties in the way of the delegation's visit to Moscow. However, to his knowledge no sites had been offered the Freedomites.

PLANT SAYS

'Wall of Sand' In Sky Would Stop Missiles

TORONTO (CP) — A retired air vice-marshal who manufactures jet aircraft says the best defence against the intercontinental ballistic missile is a wall of sand across the sky.

J. L. Plant, air vice-marshal in the RCAF until his retirement in 1956, advanced this theory Friday at a press conference called to discuss the supersonic Arrow which Avro Aircraft Limited has produced at its suburban Malton plant. Mr. Plant is Avro executive vice-president and general manager.

"Shooting a wall of sand into the sky is the best defence against the ICBM," he told reporters. "The missile will burn itself out by friction as it flies through the sand."

"The problem is getting the sand into the sky," he said.

He had no suggestions, however, for overcoming the major problem created by gravity.

Mountain Rescue

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — About 50 Moroccans marooned for a day at a Riff Hamlet by heavy snows were rescued Friday by Moroccan army mountain teams. Planes helped spot the marooned tourists.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Coming Months Will Be Rough Many Agree

By WALTER BREED, Jr.
NEW YORK (AP) — Things look good over the long pull. But the next few months may be rough.

That's what United States businessmen were telling themselves this week as they turned their backs on 1957 and took the first cautious steps into a new year fraught with uncertainties and problems.

Many are in much better shape to survive the harsh business climate than they would have been a year ago. Inventories had been whittled down, overhead costs pared, expensive and unnecessary frills eliminated. After years of sitting back and taking orders, salesmen again are going out to sell.

With the new year, the upturn businessmen hoped for was still little more than a speck on the horizon. Consensus is that it will be at least six months in coming.

This week public officials and private businessmen took steps to hasten its arrival.

MORE FOR DEFENSE

The federal government charted plans for a stepped up defense program geared to the age of space. Defense Secretary Neil McElroy said military spending for the fiscal year starting July 1 will rise to about $40,000,000,000 — a gain of $1,500,000,000 over the current rate. Most of the increase will be channelled into the missiles program.

"SPURT THEN SAG"

Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks described business in 1957 as "spurt then sag". In 1958, he said, it will be "mild dip and then climb".

Briefly over the business scene: Thanks to a quirk in the calendar, United States department stores sales in Christmas week showed a 31 per cent gain over 1956. There was one more pre-holiday shopping day than in the same week a year ago when Christmas fell on Tuesday.

United States auto makers rolled out 6,115,467 cars last year. First-place Chevrolet nosed out Ford by a margin of 144 cars in the 1957 production race but latest figures showed Ford out in front in the retail sales derby. Americans last year paid $40,000,000,000 for new and used cars.

NO FOUL PLAY AS DUNCAN MAN GOES MISSING

DUNCAN (CP)—The possibility of foul play in the disappearance of Bill Carr, 58, of nearby Kokislah, has been discounted, police said here.

They said investigation showed, "it was a planned disappearance—he simply decided to pull out, packed up and left."

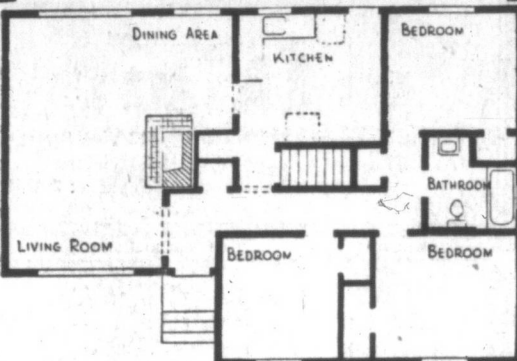

Bloodstains found in the missing man's apartment, RCMP said, indicate he may have had a nosebleed.

Carr's disappearance was reported when he failed to turn up for work at a hotel where he was employed as a part-time waiter.

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

1958 Promising

COWICHAN LEADER

This district has every reason to feel that 1957 was a good one. It should have been a cause to fear 1958. The year we are now entering upon is the centennial year of our province, the year to honor the beginning of joint mainland and V.I. government and the end of separate Crown colonies.

We should realize, one and all, that we have once again been a very favored district. Not many districts in Canada underwent a capital expenditure of $60,000,000 in an 18-month period as we have done. This staggering sum makes up the financial story of both Crofton pulp plant and Chemainus thermal power station.

Sawmills of Cowichan Lake and Chemainus hummed steadily throughout the year, unhampered by labor troubles or supply problems. The loggers had a good working year. A copper mine is entering production. Business generally has been at a record high level. The area continues to experience considerable general growth. Though over-supply in cement is appearing, Bamberton had a good year.

Canadians are feeling that the worst of their inflationary troubles are at an end. It is to be hoped that this confidence is not misplaced. Inflation has run an expensive course during the postwar years and the measures to stem it can succeed only if every purchaser decides that he can help by trying to live closer to his income.

A New Policy

COMOX DISTRICT FREE PRESS—Whether it is the fact that there is a new government in Ottawa or whether it is that the CBC has become tired of taking criticism without reply, we do not know, but it is a welcome change to see the radio corporation taking a stand in its own defence.

The CBC has gone to great pains to correct an impression given by a magazine's quoting part of a speech by J. A. Olmet, the general manager. We aren't so concerned with the essence of the quotation or the nature of the correction but we are glad to see that a corrective press release has been issued.

Perhaps this indicates a change of attitude on the part of the CBC in its public relations. Certainly it is high time there was a change.

Kinsmen Club's Bottle Drive Set for Jan. 12

CHEMAINUS—The Kinsmen Club will hold its annual bottle drive Jan. 12, club project chairman Bob Wilson said today.

As in previous years, all proceeds from the sale of empty bottles collected during the drive will go to swell the club's B.C. Child Care and Polio Fund campaign now underway.

Soft drink, beer and milk bottles are the most favored empties, and householders are asked to have their bottles ready for the canvasser when he calls. Using the roundhouse as a base of operations Kinsmen will canvass the Chemainus and Crofton areas as well as parts of Westholme and Saltair. Bottles will be sorted and repacked at the roundhouse.

Last year Kinsmen collected 1,365 dozen beer bottles and more than 1,000 dozen empty pop bottles.

12,500 Seeking Work; Situation to Improve

Unemployment on Vancouver Island has reached an estimated 12,500, far above the total of 8,000 persons unemployed at this time last year, but Unemployment Insurance Commission officials expect the situation to ease shortly.

In Victoria the return of temporary Christmas workers to the unemployed ranks sent the number up by 362 to a total of 5,740. This situation will be eased Monday when an estimated 525 men will return to work at plywood mills of Sooke Lake Lumber Co. Ltd. and B.C. Forest Products.

About 1,600 workers in the Duncan-Cowichan area are jobless, according to R. S. Robinson, UIC manager there, but the condition is considered "normal" for this time of year. Logging camps, shut down since Dec. 20, are expected to open Jan. 6 unless heavy snow causes a further delay.

BUILDING TO HELP
With construction work winding up at the B.C. Forest Products pulp mill at Crofton and B.C. Power Commission thermal plant at Bare Point, near Chemainus, the most hopeful building project is the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation development west of the city, where 160 residential lots will be made available.

At Nanaimo, where 2,843 persons are jobless, hopes are held that a big construction program this year will ease the situation.

Courtenay has 2,300 jobless registered, and most of them will be back at work when weather conditions permit logging camps to reopen.

David Sargent, UIC manager at Port Alberni, refused to give the unemployed total, calling it only slightly higher than that of last year. Records show the total was 1,600 one year ago.

Deep-Sea Vessel At Crofton Dock

CROFTON—First deepsea ship to tie up at the B.C. Forest Products pulp mill dock was the Ss. H. D. Collier, owned by the California Shipping Co. and registered in the port of San Francisco.

It discharged 45,000 barrels of bunker fuel oil for the pulp mill.

GOVERNMENT BID FAILS TO SETTLE PULP STRIKE

FINAL BULLETINS

2nd Starvation Case Reported

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Sun today reported a second case of a woman dead, a starvation following a naturopathic diet. She was Mrs. Edith Rasmussen, 46, of Vancouver, mother of five children.

Her death preceded by eight months that of Mrs. Margaret Mary Howard, 30, who, according to a coroner's report, died of starvation and malnutrition in a North Vancouver hospital Christmas Day. (See story, Page 2.)

300 Routed by Brooklyn Fire

NEW YORK (CP)—A five-storey loft building in Brooklyn collapsed today as the aftermath of a spectacular fire that forced the evacuation of more than 300 men, women and children from nearby apartment houses in freezing weather.

Late this afternoon firemen still were fighting the blaze and the evacuees had not returned to their homes. Subway service was ordered closed down by fire commissioner Edward F. Cavanagh Jr. after the fire broke out.

Jilted Suitor Threatens Girl

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police are seeking a rejected suitor who threatened to kill a 21-year-old stenographer and take his own life. Meanwhile, a guard has been placed on the young woman's suite.

The telephone rang as a constable was interviewing the young woman and he answered it. The caller identified himself and claimed he had a .22 calibre rifle and was going to shoot the woman and then "blow my head off."

Storm Damage at $1 Million

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—A storm that pummelled this Caribbean island swept out to sea today and Cubans tallied up more than $1,000,000 in property and crop damage. The storm, with 60-mile-an-hour winds, brought floods to the coastal lowlands and 2,000 families were evacuated from their homes. Scores of persons were injured.

Churchill Cabinet Member Dies

LONDON (AP)—Viscount Waverley, 75, cabinet member in Winston Churchill's wartime government, died today of bronchial pneumonia.

The former Sir John Anderson before he was elevated to the peerage in 1952, he gave his name to the little air raid shelters which dotted the backyards of Britain during the war.

No Retaliation On Oil—Fleming

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Donald Fleming today ruled out retaliation by Canada in face of the recent United States restriction on oil imports.

"We don't like to think in terms of retaliation at all," he said in the Commons.

$4,000 Fire Destroys Garage, Car

An acetylene torch being used to carve the body of a used car spread sparks resulting in $4,000 fire that completely gutted Clarke's Auto Parts and Service, 3233 Douglas, at 9:31 a.m. today.

Saanich deputy fire chief Glen Robbins said flames from the torch apparently exploded a can of gasoline starting a fire that spread through the shop within seconds.

No one was injured.

Co-owners Alfred Blanco and Raymond Diggs were present when the fire began and attempted to douse it, "but inside of two seconds the whole building was going," Deputy Robbins said.

"Flames were leaping out the windows and up the side of the walls."

The wrecked car was the only one in the building. It was completely destroyed in the blaze.

Mr. Fleming replied he has not heard that report and can not comment on it.

STILL ON HOLIDAYS

Mr. Diefenbaker, holidaying in the Bahamas, is due to return to Ottawa early Monday.

James Byrne (L-Kootenay East) asked whether Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Fleming, while attending the recent NATO summit meeting at Paris, discussed with the U.S.

Boston Blasts Rangers

NEW YORK (AP)—Boston Bruins, down 4-1 after two periods, broke loose for six goals in the final 20 minutes today and whipped New York Rangers 7-4 in a National Hockey League game.

A barrage of six Boston goals within a span of six minutes and 32 seconds gave the Bruins their victory.

The six goals by Boston in a single period was only two short of the National Hockey League record of eight set by the Detroit Red Wings.

Henry scored New York's third goal at 2:43 and, when Creighton followed with another at 4:12, it looked like the Rangers would be an easy winner. Bucyk narrowed New York's margin to 4-2 at 12:28 and Stasiuk made it 4-3 at 13:02 when he deflected Hillman's long shot past Paille. Chevrel's goal at 15:06 tied the score and Regan put the Bruins ahead at 15:31. Bucyk then scored his third goal of the game at 16:52 and Toppazzini's goal at the 19-minute mark completed the rout.

Bronze Medals To Be Awarded Good Citizens

Bronze medals are to be awarded to 50 citizens considered to have made "outstanding contributions" to life in Greater Victoria during the past 100 years. Capt. D. J. Proudfoot, executive secretary of Greater Victoria Centennial Committee, announced today.

It is expected that the medals will be presented by Princess Margaret during her centennial visit here July 12.

The Princess, in turn, will receive a gold souvenir medal from the Victoria Numismatic Society.

Both the gold and the bronze medals will be engraved with the B.C. centennial crest on one side and a likeness of Sir James Douglas on the reverse. "The 50 outstanding citizens will be chosen by five unknown judges," Captain Proudfoot said, "and the judges have still to be selected."

Representations have been made to Buckingham Palace through the B.C. government asking Princess Margaret to make the presentations.

"We have every hope that she will graciously consent to perform this office," Capt. Proudfoot said.

Hillary Flies Back to Base 'Had Enough of Crevasses'

HILLARY COUP 'CLASSIFIED'

LONDON (AP)—The Times of London, which carries classified ads but never a news story on page one, got so excited today about Sir Edmund Hillary's feat in reaching the South Pole overland that it nearly broke tradition.

In the top right-hand corner of page one The Times proclaimed in a two-line, one-column announcement: "Hillary at the South Pole." The last time The Times bent tradition that way was when Hillary reached the top of Mt. Everest.

claiming he has "had enough of ice and crevasses," decided today to leave the South Pole without waiting for a British expedition which is attempting the first crossing of the frozen Antarctic continent.

The 38-year-old New Zealand beekeeper-explorer apparently reached his surprise decision after learning that the British group, led by Dr. Vivian Fuchs, was still 360 miles away from the "bottom of the world" and had again run into trouble.

Hillary, who Friday became the first man to reach the pole by an overland route in 46 years, radioed to the New Zealand base on McMurdo Sound that he and the four other members of his party will fly back "by the first available American aircraft." The next plane is due to leave for McMurdo Sound Monday.

Earlier reports had placed

Fuchs within 200 miles of the pole, and the headquarters of the British expedition in London had expected him to link up with Hillary Sunday.

Hillary expressed fear today that Fuchs' expedition will "un into bad weather if it does not complete the run to Scott Base before February."

The New Zealand Antarctic expedition headquarters here emphasized that Hillary's polar dash was not for honors or a race but to ease the route-finding burden on Fuchs.

Atomic Sub Tests Hinted By Russians

MOSCOW (AP)—The newspaper Soviet Fleet indicates the Russians may be testing atomic submarines.

In a review of a booklet on submarines the navy newspaper discusses the advantages and disadvantages of atomic submarines "as discovered by testing."

The Swedish naval year book, just issued, says the Soviet Union probably already has three atomic subs.

The United States has four atomic submarines in service and a fifth is expected to join the fleet this year.

Labor Minister Raps Both Sides

VANCOUVER (CP)—Labor Minister Lyle Wicks today failed to settle a seven-week strike in British Columbia's pulp and paper industry.

Mr. Wicks was critical of the attitudes of both union and company representatives with whom he met this morning.

"There could and should have been a settlement," he said. "I am critical of both sides. There was no meeting of minds."

Mr. Wicks said the government has done all it could to help settle the dispute. He reopened discussions at the request of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

"The companies made an offer of a longer contract with added benefits. This was rejected."

Declines to Reveal New Offer

Six thousand men have been on strike at nine pulp and paper plants since Nov. 14. They asked for a 12½ per cent wage increase and rejected a conciliation board award of 7½ per cent to which the seven companies agreed. Basic wage before the strike was $1.72 an hour.

Mr. Wicks declined to say what new offer the companies made today.

Also on strike are the United Papermakers and Paper Mill Workers.

The plants affected, which produce 10 per cent of the world's newsprint supply, are operated by Alaska Pulp and Cellulose, MacMillan and Bloedel, Columbia Cellulose, Powell River, Canadian Forest Products, Crown Zellerbach and Elk Falls.

OVERTURE TO RUSS

Non-Aggression Pact Mac's Plan

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan suggested tonight that Russia and the Western powers sign a non-aggression pact.

"This has been done before," Macmillan said in a television report to the people. "It would do no harm. It might do good."

He then suggested that ultimately the heads of the great powers might meet to resolve East-West differences.

Russia has suggested several times in recent correspondence with Western government leaders that a non-aggression pact, in one form or another, would contribute to world peace. It also is campaigning now for a summit meeting.

Macmillan said Britain will leave no stone unturned in attempting to secure an agreement through which the Soviet Union and the Western world may live in peace.

Noting that the NATO government heads in Paris last month agreed on new efforts to break the East-West arms deadlock, Macmillan said:

"I don't mind whether we make it through the United Nations or at some smaller meeting. Whether it is done this way or through diplomatic

LONDON (AP)—Little-known Northampton Town today humbled mighty Arsenal 3-1 and knocked the famous London team out of the Football Association Cup competition in one of the biggest-ever soccer upsets on a day of thrills and giant-killing.

Northampton trained for the big match on sherry, eggs and steak. Immediately after their victory they celebrated the club's proudest day with champagne.

"It was a wonderful, wonderful day," commented Northampton manager Dave Smith, whose team is struggling near the foot of the Third Division on a shoe-string balance sheet.

Wealthy Arsenal has won the cup three times. Northampton never has been anywhere near success.

West Ham United and Stockport County joined Northampton as the day's giant-killers. West Ham, a Second Division team, routed First Division Blackpool 5-1. Third Division Stockport defeated Luton 3-0.

The only two non-league survivors were knocked out. Sheffield Wednesday won 3-0 at Huddersfield and Fulham routed Yeovil Town 4-0.

Wolverhampton Wanderers, setting the pace in this season's league championship race, nosed out Lincoln City 1-0.

HAPPY AS THIS FAMILY LOOKS, they know what it is to have their home and plans for the future shattered by the impact of polio. Mrs. Iris Munro, 624 Lampson, seen here with her husband, Jim, and boys, Kenny and Jimmy, has been in a wheelchair for over three years as a result of the paralytic effects of the disease. Four-year-old Kenny (left) was born in an iron lung two months after his mother was stricken.

THIRD SHOT NEXT WEEK

Polio Victims Wish They Had Salk Vaccine

By MICHAEL ROSE

During next week, Monday through Friday, polio vaccine will be available to over 15,000 adults in Greater Victoria at Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals.

These are people who received their first two shots in May and June last year and are now ready for the vital third dose.

This is not a haphazard handing out of three doses of medicine, but a carefully planned program designed to offer maximum protection against three strains of virus.

"Good evidence is available," said a medical spokesman, "to show that adequate protection is not obtained from the first two injections and a third is necessary to ensure protection."

"Further," he said, "there are no distressing side effects and no danger to those receiving injections if they have a cold or have just recovered from influenza."

These 15,000 people have an unprecedented opportunity to provide themselves for the first time in history with almost total protection against one of the most universally crippling diseases.

Housekeeper No Substitute for Mother

During the past two years, Mr. Brown has had the problem of caring for the three children in addition to holding down his job.

Great difficulty is experienced by many people in this situation in finding suitable housekeepers. The Brown family has had five and Mr. Brown says, "they are very good with the children but no housekeeper can ever entirely take the place of a mother."

Mrs. Iris Munro, 624 Lampson Street, was a registered nurse before she married and familiar with the disease but in October, 1953, she was stricken and a little over two months later her second boy, Kenny, was born in an iron lung.

Mrs. Munro is still confined to a wheelchair and dependent on a housekeeper for heavy work but keeps occupied at night by acting as a private nurses' telephone directory.

"When a family is hit with polio," she said, "there is no warning, we can tell you that. One day we were an average normal couple with one little one and another on the way, working slowly toward, someday, having a house and business of our own. The next day our dream had burst and we had a fight for my life and that of our unborn child."

Some, like Ken Bishop, 1047 Wollaston, have been luckier and made recoveries that enable them to carry out a normal day's work.

Not totally affected at the outset of the disease Mr. Bishop describes himself as being "very fortunate."

He was stricken in November, 1955, and after spending more than a year in hospital and the Western Rehabilitation Centre in Vancouver, returned to his job, working two or three hours a week until July, 1957, he was able to work full time.

These and other people who have been polio victims do not want sympathy or pity for they are trying to live lives where they will be the most use to their families and the community.

Each one of them will feel himself more than amply rewarded if every one of the 15,000 people eligible for shots this next week gets them.

The vaccine is Canadian-bred and refined in the Connaught Laboratories of the University of Toronto. It is supplied to the medical association for the purposes of this drive by the manufacturers at cost price.

Look at the card you were given last May, showing the day, time and hospital you should go to.

If you feel any doubts about attending, think of the consequences if one of your family was paralyzed in an iron lung.

The issue precipitated a nine-day tieup of the CPR last January. The three-man commission headed by Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of the Supreme Court of Canada is expected to report this month.

Hot Dogs Spark Warm Reception for Hillary

SOUTH POLE (AP)—Sir Edmund Hillary and his band of New Zealanders feasted on beans and hot dogs today after completing their trek to the South Pole over nearly 1,300 miles of snow and ice.

Meanwhile, London papers hit out at the publicity given Hillary's feat of being a "contest winner."

The 38-year-old conqueror of Mount Everest pulled into the American scientific station here today after camping in sight of it Friday night with tractor gasoline left for only 20 more miles.

The five-man band was the first to make it overland from the coast in 46 years. Later trips to the pole, including the ones that set up the 17-man station here, have been by air.

Lieut. Vernon Houk, military commander of the station, and scientific leader Palle Mogensen went out to meet Hillary in a snow tractor. "Glad to be here," the rangy New Zealand beekeeper told them.

The Americans led the New Zealand caravan of three tractors two miles to the spot which U.S. scientists compute as the geographic bottom of the world. It is encircled by oil drums.

The group stopped to look at it, but Hillary did not step inside the circle. Then they went to the station mess hall for their first hot meal in several days.

The four New Zealanders, who accompanied Hillary are Murray Ellis, Peter Mulgrew, Jim Bates and Derek Wright. Their party made a forced march of 70 miles in 24 hours to arrive in sight of the U.S. base.

In London, The Daily Telegraph says it is "regrettable" that Sir Edmund Hillary's race to the South Pole ahead of Dr. Vivian Fuchs attracted so much publicity.

Other British newspapers in editorials also emphasized that Hillary's feat, though praise-worthy, was only incidental to the main purpose of the Commonwealth trans-Antarctic

Oil Import Curbs Attacked by Martin

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Canada, with a Conservative government talking about diverting 15 per cent of its trade from the U.S. to the United Kingdom, should expect retaliatory trade restrictive steps from the Americans, opposition members suggested in the Commons Friday.

Paul Martin, former minister of health and welfare, and a possible candidate for the Liberal leadership hammered hard on the fact that a government which talks of taking trade away from one country should not be surprised when that country retaliates.

He was referring to the action by the U.S. in bringing Canada under the American "voluntary restriction" program which substantially affects Canadian exports of oil into the western U.S.

He suggested it was significant that Canada up until recent days was excluded from the policy pursued by the American government in restricting oil imports from other producing countries.

"We in this House have an obligation to ask ourselves why

this very serious action (restricting Canadian oil exports into the U.S.) has been taken by a friendly country," Mr. Martin said.

A shift of 15 per cent of Canada's trade from one country to another represent some $625,000,000, he pointed out.

"This is an extremely important matter which affects the economic well-being of this country and one which could in a very large measure have much to do with the continuation of the high level of unemployment which now prevails in Canada," Mr. Martin declared.

He suggested it was not unreasonable to conclude that Canada's talk of shifting its trade might have been one reason why the U.S. deliberately resorted to a 15 per cent cut in oil imports from Canada.

"Utter Nonsense"—Fleming

Mr. Fleming, minister of finance, interjected, "Nonsense, utter nonsense."

Mr. Martin said the minister did not know what had prompted the U.S. to take its restrictive trade steps involving Canadian oil.

"More regrettably the honorable gentleman who is now in a position to have better information does not know much more about what was in the mind of the American government than I do," said Mr. Martin.

"I could not know less," said Mr. Fleming.

Mr. Martin persisted. He said the government owes it to parliament and to the Canadian people to indicate now, or soon, whether it is persisting in its policy of a 15 per cent shift in trade from the U.S. to the United Kingdom.

"Because that policy is calculated in my judgment to bring about the very situation of which I am now complaining," he said. He noted that

Prime Minister Diefenbaker while he had talked about a proposed 15 per cent shift in trade at a press conference with the parliamentary press gallery, and later at Montreal, had never referred to that proposal in the House of Commons.

Mr. Martin said there were reports that in Washington Mr. Fleming had told his counterparts in the U.S. government not to take the 15 per cent trade shift proposal too seriously.

"Nonsense," shouted Mr. Fleming.

"Does that mean that this proposal is to be taken seriously?" enquired Mr. Martin.

"That is pretty wild reasoning," retorted Mr. Fleming.

"It is the first real indication that we have now had that it is the policy of the government to bring about a shift in Canadian purchases," snapped Mr. Martin.

Erhart Regier (CCF-Burnaby-Coquitlam) said that the Canadian government simply registering a protest with the U.S. government was not enough.

He criticized the federal government for reluctance to pay $20,550,000 cost estimated for the 375-mile northern road when it insisted on high minimum standards.

"We are not prepared to spend some $14,500,000 over four years to complete the road to those standards," he said.

"If the federal government is genuinely desirous of seeing the road completed, we feel it should put up half the money."

COST INCREASED
He made the comment on a statement in Ottawa by Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton that a federal survey had estimated cost of the road at $20,550,000, compared with the original estimate of $12,000,000.

Mr. Hamilton said the Conservative government has agreed to honor a Liberal pledge early this year to put up $6,000,000 over a period of four years but was "very reluctant" to pay any more.

Mr. Kiernan said he was sure an access road of the originally proposed standard still could be built for $12,000,000. He added he would discuss the matter with Mr. Hamilton in Ottawa next week.

Martin Due In Vancouver
VANCOUVER (CP)—Paul Martin, former federal minister of health and welfare, will be here Sunday and Monday to meet B.C. delegates attending the Liberal party's national convention in Ottawa, Jan. 14, 15 and 16.

Mr. Martin is contesting Liberal party leadership with Lester Pearson, former secretary of state for external affairs, and Mayor Don Mackay of Calgary.

These theories are erroneous, harmful and dangerous and have been disproved by the medical profession long ago."

Her death was attributed by Dr. Harold Dyer, North Vancouver coroner, to starvation and dehydration.

Her husband, J. W. Howard, said a Vancouver naturopath ordered his wife to fast for lengthy periods as a treatment for cancer.

Mr. Howard claimed she died because doctors forced her to take food.

"I cannot say whether the government will conduct an inquiry until we know more about the case," Mr. Martin said.

In Vancouver, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said he expedition led by Fuchs. Hillary heads the New Zealand section of the expedition.

The Telegraph says no one will begrudge Hillary's achievement in reaching the pole Friday, but "it is regrettable that so much publicity of the kind suitable to the winner of a contest should have been attracted to the event."

The Manchester Guardian says Hillary's achievement was remarkable but "should not be allowed to obscure the main purpose of the operation."

Fuchs and Hillary had planned to complete the trip across the continent together as a Commonwealth contribution to the International Geophysical Year. But Fuchs bogged down.

The New Zealand adventurer apparently became impatient and on Dec. 26 radioed: "I am hell bent for the South Pole—God willing and crevasses permitting."

Scott Base is named for the leader of the last expedition to reach the pole overland—British naval Capt. Robert F. Scott. He reached the pole Jan. 18, 1912, but died on the way out, leaving Norway's Roald Amundsen as the first and only explorer to complete a successful overland expedition to the pole and back. Amundsen, who was in a race with Scott, reached the pole Dec. 14, 1911.

Chest Gift to SPCA To Be Given Study

The Community Chest will study the matter of supporting the SPCA here when it takes over pound-keeping and dog-licensing in the city, Chest president R. B. Wilson said Friday.

At present SPCA work is supported by the Chest, and a by-law giving the SPCA responsibility for the pound will be given final reading at the next city council meeting.

Under the new plan, the SPCA will give the city $1,500 of the money it collects the first year and increase the payment of $2,500 in three years.

"When all the facts are known in the arrangement between the city council and the SPCA, the Community Chest will give the matter some study," Mr. Wilson said.
